NEW GEORGIA FALLS TO U. S. AS JAPS FLEE

Foe 'Pulls a Kiska,' Leaving Key to Central Solomons In Allied Hands.

last minute evacuation across Kula gulf to Vila, Jap base on Kolombangara island.

The Yanks found a number of prepared positions abandoned by the Japs, who also left behind large quantities of food, some vehicles and other equipment.

The Japs fled from Bairko just as they did from Kiska in the Aleutians.

It would seem that once again the Japanese have chosen to retreat rather than stand and fight to the last man. Apparently the followers of Hirohito have learned that it does not pay to stand and face the wrath of forward-surging Yankee forces.

The elimination of the last Japanese stronghold on New Georgia brought the Allies one great step nearer the Japs' great base at Rabaul, New Britain.

Neutralization or capture of Rabaul is considered imperative to moves against the Japanese home islands.

In New Guinea, the ground situation remained much the same with out forces gradually pressing forward to infiltrate the enemy's positions. Troops under General MacArthur's command already were in contact with Jap forces defending the edge of the Salamaua airdrome.

Heavy air units supporting the American-Australian troops in this area blasted the targets along the coast near Salamaua, as well as at Finschhafen and in the Markham river valley.

Off Buka, port of Bougainville in the Solomons, heavy bombers of the United Nations air force attacked three Japanese destroyers, blasting one of the enemy craft with a direct hit from a 500-pound bomb.

Yanks Smash at Canton, Hongkong

CHUNGKING — (INS) — Smashing new attacks by American bombing formations upon Japanese communications facilities at Canton and Hongkong were announced today in a communique issued at United States army air force headquarters in China.

The raids, carried out yesterday by giant four-motored bombers and lighter two-engined medium units brought Hongkong under attack for the second time in 72 hours.

The big Japanese-held wharf area at Hongkong was ripped and torn by high explosive bomb bursts. A number of strategic war plants and two enemy vessels were damaged in the assault.

At Canton the raiders blasted the Tienho airdrome but results of the assault were not announced.

All planes returned safely to base.

Japs' Dream Turns Into Nightmare

SAN FRANCISCO —(U.P.)— Vice Admiral John W. Greenslade, of Bellevue, O., commandant of the western sea front and 12th naval district, said today Japan's projected conquest of America is turning "from a golden dream to a black nightmare."

Speaking to the Commonwealth Club of California, Admiral Greenslade predicted that after victory is achieved in the Pacific there will be a long term U. S military occupation of Japan.

Tokyo Honors Attu 'Suicide Commander'

(By Associated Press)

The late Col. Yauyo Yamazaki, commander of the Japanese garrison wiped out in a suicide stand on Attu in the Aleutians, has been cited posthumously for his "dauntless spirit and absolute loyalty to the throne," a Tokyo broadcast recorded by the Associated Press said today.

The radio said Yamazaki was the "paragon of the Nipponese soldier" defending Attu "without asking for reinforcement of a single soldier or a single bullet" and leading a final charge on May 29 to avoid "the ignominy of being taken prisoner" after ascertaining that all sick and wounded soldiers had voluntarily disposed of themselves."

Yamazaki's men also were cited, the broadcast added.

Kolombangara Japs Appear Doomed Now

U. S. HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC — (AP) — American occupation of Bairoko on New Georgia island leaves Bougainville as the only Japanese operating base in the Solomons and dooms the enemy garrison of possibly 10,000 men on Kolombangara island, a navy spokesman said today.

The spokesman for Adm. William F. Halsey, jr., commander of South Pacific forces, said Bairoko "closed the book" on the 57-day New Georgia campaign except for minor operations.

"It was a most satisfying show," he added. "Our losses in personnel and materiel were light, both compared to the Japanese losses and what we had expected we would have to pay."

OHIOAN WOUNDED

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The navy announced today that Luther Edison Goddard, son of Mrs. Mabel R. Goddard of Sebring, O., has been wounded in action.

7 AT LARGE

Twelve Escaped Nazis Are Recaptured In Canada.

KINGSTON, Ont. —(U.P.)— Seven of the 19 war prisoners who escaped from Fort St. Henry internment camp, remained at large today and Royal Canadian Mounted police joined provincial and provost authorities in the search.

The 12 others were captured yesterday, four of them shortly after the group escaped by digging a tunnel to an abandoned sewer, which ran beneath the camp and emptied into Lake Ontario.

NUREMBERG IN FLAMES AFTER 2-HOUR RAID

Attack Follows U. S. Fortress Blow at Mystery Target In French Forest.

than 1,100 miles across the English channel, occupied France and into the heart of Germany on their round trip to Nuremberg.

The center of Nuremberg is a walled city of closely-packed stone houses. The wall is surrounded by a moat, around which surves a great circular boulevard. Beyond is the industrial area, where Diesel engines for submarines, aircraft parts, tanks and armored cars are built.

Fortress pilots said they had devastated an objective nearing completion in a forest after having been under construction for several months.

British Typhoon fighter-bombers joined in the evening offensive with a raid on a power station at Gosnay, three miles from Bethune in north France, and watchers on the southeast coast said the sky at dusk was literally filled with bombers and fighters returning from Europe, tier on tier.

"For an hour and 20 minutes this grand procession of Allied air might continued," one watcher said. "No matter where one looked there were planes, planes, planes, hundreds of them."

At some points, the miles-long procession of bombers took two hours to pass overhead and the London Daily Express called the force of big bombers the greatest ever sent against Europe, an indication that it may have exceeded the 1,036-plane armada that raided Essen in the second of three 1,000-plane raids on Germany June 1, 1942.

Some of the returning bombers flew over London and their engines were audible for an hour. Many persons, unable to sleep because of the drone, left their beds and went to the streets in an effort to see them.

American airmen returning from the Fortress raid on France reported that the objective hidden in the forest was bombed to bits. "If we have to go back there," said Lieut. F. N. Broach of Dallas, Tex., a bombardier, "it will be only because they have rebuilt it."

American Thunderbolt and Allied Spitfire fighters escorted and supported the Fortresses so completely that only a few enemy interceptors broke through for direct attack on the Fortresses.

Sixteen Nazi fighters were shot down, eight by the Thunderbolts and Spitfires and eight by the fighters. Four Fortresses were lost.

Spitfire fighters also escorted American Marauder medium bombers in operations of an undisclosed nature in which one enemy fighter was shot down. Marauders bombed an airfield at Poix in north France yesterday morning.

One Marauder and seven fighters were lost in American operations yesterday. However, the crew of one fighter was rescued.

American-built Mustang fighter-bombers of the RAF on offensive patrols yesterday damaged a number of locomotives in Brittany and Spitfires damaged an enemy coastal vessel off Dunkirk.

REPORT CIANO HIDES WEALTH

Russians Say He Transfers $60,000,000 to Foreigners.

LONDON — (U.P.) — A Russian Tass dispatch from Geneva said today that Count Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of former Italian Premier Benito Mussolini, has transferred personal securities amounting to $60,000,000 to two foreigners, simultaneously depositing with foreign banks huge sums belonging to himself and his relatives.

The transfers and deposits were said to have been made July 25 and 26, just after Mussolini was deposed. Ciano's property out of Italian control was estimated at $200,000,000.

clared, "The Japanese still have in operation a powerful and efficient fleet, made even stronger by a powerful and efficient naval aviation force. And the fact remains that naval sea-air power will continue to supply the big punch until United States troops have landed on the shores of Japan."

Knox asserted flatly that the Japanese offensive "has long since been stopped, and the Pacific enemy is now concentrating on an effort to hold what he has gained."

As a result of this enemy strategy, he continued, "our fighting units are offering combat much more often than they can find takers. And, indeed, the recent withdrawal from Kiska might well indicate that the Japanese have decided upon a new strategy of hitting only when they are in crushingly superior force, and of retreating when such a move would help to prolong the final coming-to-grips with our attacking forces."

Knox emphasized that the Japanese retreat from Kiska was "by no means a precedent in this war." On the contrary, he asserted, the enemy "retreated in haste in the battle of the Coral sea, and the Japanese retreat became a broken and batterrd rout as a result of the battle of Midway."

Knox, who was a participant in the United States-British war conference at Quebec, termed the meeting "one of the most satisfying and fruitful in the entire history of Anglo-American relations."

But, he said, he did not intend to add to any official announcement on the results of the conference, other than to say that every citizen of the United Nations "will have an important part in carrying out the momentous decisions which have already been reached."

a third Russian column made a direct frontal assault that shattered the German lines.

A general breakthrough followed and the Russians, who had been held up for weeks in this area, surged on to liberate 20 towns and villages in a highly fortified area. In addition to the 5,000 Nazis killed, 700 were taken prisoner and a considerable quantity of war material, as yet uncounted, was also captured.

West of Kharkov the Soviets seized a series of localities, including Kotelva, in a three-day battle that raged along the banks of the Vorskla river.

South of Kharkov, the Nazis still had power left to launch some fierce infantry and tank counter-attacks, but all were repelled and the Russians destroyed an additional 23 tanks.

Still farther south, in the region southwest of Voroshilovgrad, the Soviets continued to advance and wiped out 800 enemy troops.

Enemy military trains at the Pltava and Kramatorskaya rail junctions were severely blasted by the Soviet raiders.

Aircraft of the Red banner Baltic fleet sank a 3,000-ton German transport and an enemy guard ship.

Dr. Albert Schweitzer, famous missionary to Africa, tells of an old deaf man who used to attend his father's church. He could not hear a word, but he was always present. Someone asked him why he attended church so regularly when he could not hear a word of the service. His reply was, "The communion of the saints; the communion of the saints." He rejoiced in the mingling with Christian people who were engaged in the act of worship.

Christian fellowship and communion of the saints furnishes the stimulent necessary for the spiritual life of a growing soul. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY. D. Carl Yoder.

A 10-year campaign sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews has succeeded in eliminating from school text books in the United States virtually all passages regarded as biased from the standpoint of race and religion.

Some 400,000 copies of the Gospels has been distributed in Mexico during 1942 by the Salvation Army, the goal of the "National Evangelistic Crusade" being to place a copy in every home in the country. In 1943 1,000,000 copies are to be distributed.

A total of $1,980,223 has been given by the churches of the United States for the orphaned missions, to which both the DeGaulle and Norwegian governments have made donations. The largest gift in America was made by the Lutheran World Convention, $138,888.

Dr. E. Stanley Jones has been in Mexico recently sharing in a great evangelistic conference. Bishop Eleazar Guerra outlined a five-point program a campaign for 6,000 members; better support for preachers; educational scholarships for your people; and the raising of a quarter million pesos to make the projects possible.

According to the 1943 edition of the Yearbook of Protestant Churches, church membership has increased 50.3 per cent of the total population, the highest ever reported. The total membership of 67,327,719 persons in 256 religions is an increase of 2,826,125 persons in 250 religious bodies over the 1941 report. The Methodist reported the highest enrollment, 42,206 churches with 6,640,424 members; the Southern Baptists were next with 25,737 churches and 5,367,129 members. The Roman Catholic church reported 18,976 local churches with 22,945,247 members. The Jewish congregations had 3,728 synagogues and temples with 4,641,184 members.

There are many ways of being silly. Here are some of them: a grudge because of a slight; writing crusty letters; pouting because something has gone wrong; eating what does not agree with you; saying things that hurt and leave scars; absenting yourself from church because you dislike the preacher; taking offense at the least provocation; refusing to accept Christian principles as the way of life.

WIT AND WISDOM

A young author brought his latest masterpiece to George Bernard Shaw for his opinion. Mr. Shaw listened awhile, and then he went to sleep. The author was indignant and said loudly, "Mr. Shaw, may I point out that I came here to get your comment?" Mr. Shaw yawned and said. "My dear boy, sleep is a comment. Did you ever see any one sleep in church?"

The greatest assurance of success is to deserve it.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, AUGUST 28, 1943.

Drive carefully tomorrow—not to exceed 35 miles an hour—and notice how many cars pass you.

Roundup of a spy ring in Detroit shows that almost anything can happen in that city—and usually does.

Odd that Italy insists on getting out of the war "with honor"—she certainly made no such requirement when getting in.

Report of the seventh marriage of Tommy Manville serves as quite convincing proof that all delinquency is not "juvenile."

New York's Ambitious Mayor

POSTWAR PLANNING, as it relates to nation and world, is also extending to consideration of problems and prospects of states and cities.

It may occasion some surprise, however, to learn that even such a populous center as New York City, which already seems dangerously overcrowded, is ambitiously reaching out for more industries, more businesses, and, consequently, more people.

Far from indicating accord with what seems to be a growing trend toward decentralization, New York's Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia makes earnest presentation of that city's desirability, and in a letter to "leading industrialists and business men" of America, he cordially remarks: "I am sure you are thinking about expansion and new fields; I just wanted to let you know we are ready to care for your needs should you, too, at any time desire to join America's leading activities with headquarters on the banks of the Hudson."

Graciously Mayor LaGuardia concedes: "I do not pretend that there is no other city in the country. We rejoice that there are many great cities in our land."

To those who are native, or who have become acclimated to other of the "great cities"—or even to smaller ones—it may surprise Mayor LaGuardia to learn that New York City's appeal is negligible, either for operation of an industry or business, or as a place of residence.

Why some of the people born in New York prefer to stay there is understandable, but why anybody—for other than mercenary reasons—should deliberately choose it as a place of abode, is—from an Ohio viewpoint—incomprehensible.

Curfew Didn't Ring Very Long

MANSFIELD'S 40-year-old curfew ordinance isn't recalled as having been particularly effective even in its early stages, and the 8:30 p. m. "curfew bell", which the fire chief was supposed to ring, probably didn't last through more than a week or two.

But back in those days, when what were known as "saloons" were limited to adult male patronage, and when Mansfield's motor traffic was confined to the one-cylinder vehicle of a physician and a couple of cars in which prominent citizens flashed along at eight miles an hour, the matter of juvenile behavior was much less complicated than it has since become.

It should also be kept in mind that the "8:30 p. m." as specified in the curfew ordinance from which the accumulated dust of several decades has just been brushed off, would be 10:30 p. m. under present computation—and back in 1904, 10:30 was "late at night", for children under 16.

Possibly there isn't any real need for revamping the old curfew law—possibly the greater need is for encouragement of more parental supervision and removal of some of the contributing causes of juvenile misconduct.

But if there is to be a curfew ordinance it should surely be in modernized version—although the old one may temporarily serve to clear the streets of those youngsters under 16 who roam around town up to midnight—or even later.

See Good In Speculative Capital

ERIC JOHNSTON, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who, some say, is being groomed as dark horse for the coming Republican presidential nomination, is said to take a firm stand on the principle that capital should venture. He believes, according to Jack Alexander in the lead article in the current Saturday Evening Post, that "our most pressing domestic task, if America wants to avoid becoming a fascist state, is that of preserving the chance to take a chance." "Risk capital," he maintains, "is the life blood of our free economy and if it is allowed to congeal, the free economy will die."

Russell Weisman, economist, thinks "emphasis should not all be put on postwar employment," but "it would be well to give a good deal to that of new capital creation. If the capital problem is wisely solved, the question of jobs will pretty well take care of itself, but the reverse is not true." He comments on the fact that "the whole decade of the 1930s brought out so little capital that one could honestly ask whether modern capitalism as we had previously known it had not ceased to function even then."

When memory goes back to the "strike of capital" in the 1930s, when capitalists shrank back in their shells and refused to take any chance at peacetime production to get the economic machine off its dead center, and the rush into action when war offered war profits, fear that there will not be enough capital to start production after the war seems unjustified.

Keep Pennies In Circulation

SCARCITY of pennies is again becoming a matter of concern and people are being asked to keep pennies in circulation instead of putting them in children's banks or otherwise hoarding them.

While millions of new pennies (the kind that "look like a dime") have been minted and spread around the country, comparatively few of them appear in use and they are much disliked by those who have occasion to handle them because they must be carefully watched to avoid errors in making change.

Keep only as many pennies as needed for convenience. Turn in the surplus to a bank or store.

The Akron Beacon Journal rather confidently asserts: 'The American people are awakening to a realization that they are at war"—and high time, it may be added.

Somebody in the east has announced full agreement with Ickes in the matter of gas rationing—which will certainly be annoying to Mr. Ickes.

Sign of the times: The next ration books are being planned to last two years—with plastic tokens as change.

Nazis Make Neutrality Difficult, Sweden Nearing Brink of War

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

SOMETHING RED HOT—Something to watch closely for developments—is the announcement by the government of Sweden that two German minesweepers sank two Swedish fishing boats without warning off Denmark on August 25.

An angry Stockholm immediately started an investigation. Should that inquiry establish that the Huns have again perpetrated one of their cold-blooded acts of ruthlessness, it might be the explosive event which would bring Sweden into the war on the side of the Allies.

That's not a prediction. I'm merely pointing to a tendency which has been pulling a reluctant Sweden nearer and nearer to the brink of the European maelstrom recently. This is one of those "can-be-if" situations.

One wonders in particular what the effect would be on Stockholm if the Western Allies should stage an invasion of western Europe in the immediate future. It certainly would put the Swedes in a much stronger position.

Relations between the Scandinavian country and her gangster neighbor have been increasingly strained for four months. For the past three months the Swedes have been standing at arms, ready for action if forced from their chosen position of neutrality.

Now comes this fresh sensation in which the German warships are said to have fired from a range of fifty yards on the little boats. The fishing craft were flying their country's flag, and had the Swedish blue and gold insignia painted trustingly on their sides.

Stockholm regards this as the worst in a series of incidents involving Germany since the sinking of the Swedish submarine Ulven on April 16, with her crew of thirty-four.

THE FACT that the Nazis have been jittery in the expectation of an Allied invasion of Denmark scarcely could salve Swedish honor or indignation. That's an excuse something like the one the Boche gave after sending the Ulven to the bottom. The Hitlerites said they mistook the Ulven for an enemy craft — but they didn't make the tale stick in Stockholm.

It was last March 24 that Sir Alfred Knox, member of the British parliament, told the House of Commons that Sweden's attitude since the beginning of the war had been "definitely pro-Axis." Whether that represented the position exactly is something for history to decide.

Perhaps it might be more accurate to say that some of Sweden's actions had been pro-Axis, thereby making way for a delicate differentiation. We should remember that Sweden was right under Hitler's big guns, and in constant danger of invasion by the Boche. Sweden's position was mighty difficult.

Anyway, the Allied government quietly but clearly made it known that those who are not for us are against us. This didn't improve Sweden's uncomfortable position, but it did produce signs that Stockholm was giving it thoughtful consideration.

A little later there began a long series of incidents for which the Nazis were responsible, and there has been a distinct cooling of Swedish-German relations. Stockholm's attitude has stiffened as the Axis has sunk into the slough of defeat, and as the prospects of an Allied invasion of western Europe have grown.

SWEDISH protests to Berlin increased, and by the end of April the Swedes were talking rough to the Nazis. At this time it was made known that Sweden's armed forces were ready for eventualities.

By mid-July observers stated that the Scandinavian country was at the peak of military preparedness and it was said she could mobilize at least 600,000 well trained men. Simultaneously the press was conducting a campaign against the continued transportation of German troops to and from Norway across Sweden.

Very recently the repressive measures of Quisling in Norway have stirred a bitter reaction in Sweden. In Stockholm there have been anti-Nazi demonstrations. The Swedish government revoked the privilege of transporting Nazi troops across the country.

That brings us up to the sinking of the little fishing boats. Swedish-German relations are doing a tight-rope act over Niagara.

Making Excuses

YOU GET SO MAD! Looking back over your life you get so mad and discouraged. Just one darned mess after another. One flop after another. What's the use? You never have the breaks—

But maybe there's a reason why you never have the breaks. Maybe there's a reason why your life is just one mess after another. Stop a minute. Wipe your tears, pull up your jaw—and use the good old bean.

There was that mistake you made this morning. Not much of a mistake; you've almost forgotten it. Don't forget it. Sit down and think about it. That mistake was important. It holds the secret of all your misfortunes. You don't believe that? Listen—

You made that mistake. Just a silly little mistake. But what did you do about it? You did what you have always done whenever you made a mistake, big or little—YOU LOOKED AROUND FOR AN EXCUSE. Quick as a flash, without a moment's hesitation, you looked around for an excuse.

And that, of course, was natural. It was the old animal instinct of self-preservation asserting itself. Mistakes mean trouble. Trouble means danger, discomfort, humiliation, possibly punishment. An animal's first impulse is to hide itself from danger. You, too, are an animal. Your first impulse, also, is to duck.

So you ducked. As soon as you made that mistake, you grabbed the nearest excuse and ducked. That was easy. One can always find a thousand handy alibis. Blame someone else. Say you were sick. Say you didn't know.

You made an excuse. Probably it was a good excuse. It satisfied others. It prevented trouble—shushed the nagging. And you felt fine! You stopped feeling shaky inside, prickly outside. Your courage was returned; your wounded vanity was soothed. Everything was jake again. Or was it?

No, it wasn't. For you really haven't wiped out that mistake at all and you know you haven't. You'll go on making mistakes, just like that, again and again. Life will continue to be "one darned mess after another" until—

Until you stop ducking — stop making excuses, and force yourself to face the real reason for all these messes.

But what is the real reason?

The real reason is YOURSELF.

The real reason is SOMETHING IN YOUR OWN NATURE.

Many other things may come into the picture. Other people may come in. Sickness may come in. Disorder may come in.

But behind the other people, behind the sickness and disorder, lies some weakness in your own nature that is tricking and trapping you again and again.

Some weakness—laziness, cowardice, conceit, greediness, silliness; which is it? I don't know. Nobody can know except yourself. And you'll never know until you stop running away and turn and face yourself.

Know the truth about yourself. Then the weakness in yourself, which is responsible for all your misery, will no longer spoil your life.

You can be free. You can be strong. You can be happy. You need only to face yourself.

BUT HAVE YOU GOT WHAT IT TAKES?

Timely Editorial

Farmers Can Handle the Deer.

The numerous protests coming from this part of the state will be sufficient, we hope, to cause the state conservation commission to drop its tentative plans for permitting deer hunting in December.

The property damage and personal injury that would result from a frontal attack by thousands of hunters on a few scared deer would be a high price to pay for the benefits derived.

It appears that the alleged damage being caused by deer to fruit trees and crops has been grossly exaggerated. Season or no season, a farmer still has the right to shoot animals that are a nuisance. He doesn't need any help from urban hunters nor does he want them trooping en masse over his fields looking for deer that may or may not be there. —Akron Beacon Journal.

Speed-Up In Action Against Japan Looms as Quebec Confab Closes

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

ANNOUNCEMENT of the appointment of Lord Louis Mountbatten as supreme Allied commander in the southeast Asia war theater came so quickly after the wind-up of Quebec conversations between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill that it was quite generally interpreted as the first move in the heralded plan to intensify action against Japan and open the Burma route to China so as to give greater aid to the fighting forces of Chiang Kai Shek.

Exactly a week after their talks commenced—a week of military successes and diplomatic alarms—the president and prime minister ended their conference at Quebec.

Before the president left to address the Canadian parliament at Ottawa, he and Mr. Churchill revealed hints of what had been discussed, left much that could only be surmised.

It was stated that talks "turned very largely" on the war against Japan and the bringing of effective aid to China. Observers believed this meant expanding the American air force in China, an aerial offensive against Japan and her lifelines in the China Sea.

No mention was officially made of second-front talk, beyond the statement that "the necessary decisions have been taken to provide for the forward action of the fleets, armies and air forces" of Britain and America. Earlier it had been announced that "military decisions of the utmost importance" were reached.

Reporters definitely learned: (1) Another conference would be held this year. (2) Efforts would be made to arrange a three-power conference with Soviet representatives. (3) A statement on the French committee of liberation had been decided upon.

Diplomatic Moves.

Misgivings caused by failure of any Soviet representative to attend the Quebec talks were swiftly climaxed by the recall of Maxim M. Litvinov as ambassador to the United States. A similar action regarding Ambassador to Britain Ivan M. Maisky brought added consternation.

Most widely accepted theory was that Moscow had taken this means of expressing resentment at the lack of the long-predicted land front in western Europe. Litvinov, exponent of Soviet accord with the democracies, was succeeded at Washington by Andrei Gromyko, a younger though able diplomat.

Quotes

Navy Secretary Knox: "In the South Pacific we have had success but we are a great many miles from Tokyo, our objective, and there is a lot of trouble in between."

Dr. William B. Pugh, Protestant commissioner U. S. Army and Navy chaplains: "What I've already seen convinces me we will hardly know this world when the war is over. It's all going to be just about like one big country."

At Home

Factory, Field vs. Home, Army.

Pearl Harbor sent American women by the thousands flocking to industrial courses, unaccustomed places at war machines. Today, the War Manpower Commission has disclosed, the trend is reversed.

How to keep America's women heading for factories instead of the home is a problem that may have to be solved by a feminine equivalent of the men's "work or fight" order. WMC officials during the week declared national service legislation is "inevitable" if increased production schedules are to be met. They added that women constitute the only large source of new labor from which 3,000,000 new workers will have to come in the next nine months.

Meanwhile the OWI estimated that an additional 750,000 persons would be needed to help the nation's 11,000,000 farm workers get in the fall harvest.

Cast of Characters.

To the growing list of wartime spy stories, the FBI added one complete with cast of characters including a descendant of French nobility, a social worker, an obstetrician, and a member of the merchant marine.

The setting of the story is Detroit. There, according to the FBI, 34-year old Grace Buchanan-Dineen, sometimes known as "Countess," moved in good circles, lectured on France.

The social worker, Theresa Behrens, 44, lived in Germany until a few years ago, and so did the obstetrician, Dr. Fred William Thomas, 44. The 27-year old member of the merchant marine, Bertrand Steuart Hoffman, used to visit the Detroit restaurant of Max Stephan, now serving a life sentence for treason after aiding an escaped German flier.

During the week the FBI clamped down, all four had obtained information on Detroit war plant operations and defenses, had transmitted it to Nazi superiors.

Fadeout From Kiska.

For more than a year Kiska's 8,500 Japs had held out, though deluged with 5½ million pounds of bombs. U. S. planes and warships kept the garrison under heavy bombardment. To maintain them the Japanese had sacrificed some 30 supply and war ships.

But when the Allied invasion force swarmed ashore on Kiska in full battle kit, they found the Japanese had already gone—probably soon after Aug. 13 when anti-aircraft fire noticeably slackened.

Relinquished to the Allies was a good airfield, fit for bombers, less than 900 miles from Paramushiro—and the last pretenses of an enemy offensive in the North Pacific.

Abroad

"Battle of Berlin."

Start of the Hamburg-style raid for which Berliners have braced themselves came during the week with a 700-plane RAF attack on the German capital.

It came, dramatically, just as the Quebec conference was closing, while Germans were still bemused by the loss of Kharkov.

Four times as heavy as any raid suffered by London, was Berlin's initial 1,800-ton bombing. For 40 minutes block busters and incendiaries rained down. Smoke rose three miles in the air.

Just before midnight the bombers roared in. They found no less than 20 rings of searchlights fingering the sky, but only weak anti-aircraft resistance. German fighters, however, came up in force and 38 British planes were downed.

Britons believed that the studied obliteration which befell Hamburg at last faced Hitler's capital.

Political Shakeup.

Scarcely less terrifying to Germans than the week's military events must have been the announcement that Hitler had given Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler broad new powers, made him interior minister and "chief of the Reich administration." As such he will govern civilians.

Rat-faced, sinister Reichsminister Himmler has been called Germany's most hated man. Though only 43, he is a pioneer Nazi—took part in the "Beer Hall putsch" and sat in judgment over former colleagues in the 1934 blood purge. He organized the Gestapo secret police, tirelessly ferreted out and disposed of thousands of Nazism's foes and victims.

German Rout.

Four times since 1941 has Kharkov, the "Pittsburgh of Russia," changed hands. Lying at the eastern edge of the Ukraine, it was the last major conquest of the Germans' first invasion drive. Russian armies retook the city last February, lost it three weeks later.

During the week they came again, this time in a crushing summer offensive which had already rolled the Nazis out of three chief strongholds — Orel, Belgorod, Karachev— and which threatened to drive them back to the Dnieper River before autumn brings a recess.

London observers said Adolf Hitler had suffered one of his worst defeats in Kharkov—might lose all South Russia. Stalin jubilantly hailed recapture of "the second capital—our native Kharkov."

Knockout Air Blows.

Devastating Allied air attacks ripped the Italian railway system at vital junctions in the South. Foggia was blasted in the biggest air raid in the Mediterranean theater. Great fleets of Flying Fortresses, Liberators and Marauder bombers swept over Naples to finish off earlier destruction of the marshalling yards, blast key switching points in the suburbs. Traffic on Italy's two main trunk lines was crippled.

Meanwhile American scouting planes met no resistance whatever in flights over Rome. Marshal Badoglio had proclaimed it an open city.

Belatedly he advised the British and American governments that the capital had been cleared of military installations.

In Short

Arrived: In England, Norman Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross.

Appointed: To chairmanship of the Inter-American Defense Board, Lt. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the Eastern Defense Command.

CULLED FOR VARIETY.

IN THE North Platte valley of Nebraska, partly grown turkeys are being rented at the rate of $5 for 1000 birds per day to be ranged over grasshopper-infested territory. Grasshoppers furnish a thrifty source of protein for turkey poults if not too much turkey energy need be used in chasing the hoppers.

Uncle Sam is buying heavy turkeys in August for the soldiers' Thanksgiving dinner overseas.

"Hogging down" corn will lessen the need for extra farm help, but fences should be in readiness before animals are turned in, and the area harvested limited to what the animals can clean up in a week or 10 days. Protein supplement in a self feeder, and plenty of clean water are essential. Right weight for animals before hogging—120 to 150 pounds.

TEN MILLION pounds of milkweed floss is a lot of fluff! That's the goal the War Production Board has set for a stock pile to be accumulated. Wisconsin is the biggest milkweed producing state, so far. Dr. Boris Berkman, a native of Czarist Russia, has taken up milkweed research where Thomas A. Edison left off. Besides down for replacing wool in aviation apparel and life preservers, milk weed also yields oils, wall board, surgical dressings, and writing paper.

MRS. FIREFLY is the "glow-worm" of song and story. The fireflies live in every damp hollow, and feed upon the common snails which they render numb with their own peculiar brand of firefly anesthetic before devouring.

FUTURE FARMERS of an Ohio community salvaged an old drill turned in during the junk drive, paid $6 for it, replaced the missing parts; pointed the tool—and sold it to a farmer for $125. Everybody happy - everybody benefitted.

A GOOD RULE for a farmer when political matters are under discussion - Listen well; think much; say little.

There's still more than a year before election, and a mighty important year, so it seems to us.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"I won't take another potato out of the ground until the coal situation is settled!!!"

Dave Boone Says:

THE IMPULSE of most of us is to cheer when we hear another enemy city has been bombed. But the next reaction, I guess, is to feel deep regret that aerial bombardment ever became an instrument of war. The Nazis, and the Nazis alone, brought it all upon themselves by their frightful use of the bombing plane against helpless cities early in the war. But no normal person can really feel elated that man's inventions have been so destructive to him.

How the Germans could have thought they could shower bombs on London, Warsaw, Rotterdam, Coventry and scores of other cities and not get it back some day is hard to understand. The whinings of their leaders about brutal air attacks are disgusting.

Nevertheless, it is as sad to think of the Germany of Kris Kringle, the musicians and toymakers in flames as it is to think of the England of the poets and dramatists battered by bombs.

* * *

The use of airplanes for bombing great civilian centers is uncivilized and frightful, and every man, woman and child is bound to regret that Germany permitted a madman like Hitler to start it.

ODD FACT

We gain a few seconds every year in spite of the addition of leap year, and 3,323 years from the date of the beginning of the Gregorian calendar we'll have to drop a leap year.

HELL AND HIGH WATER

CHAPTER VII

"He has to stand up to what is right," Bob answered. He felt a contemptuous pity for this little man who had been caught in the pincers of fate and had not the strength to fight his way out. It was not fair to blame him for a weakness that was beyond the force in him to defeat. "But Cle Hightower isn't dead yet. Some of his friends are still hoping to save him."

"I wish to God they could," the mover said emphatically. "I'd feel a heap better."

"I know you would," Bob said.

Bob saddled Blaze. He had decided to have the horse in a more handy place, one not so close to Jake Hickory's mount. It was possible he might have to light out in a hurry.

"Thought you were staying the night," Todd said.

"I'm a changeable cuss. Can't tell whether I will or not."

He rode back through the town and tied the horse in a dark alley back of a hardware store. Every foot of the way his eyes searched the shadows to make sure Jake was not lying in wait for him. Yet his mind was groping with other questions. Was it a coincidence that Sugg and Hickory were both here?

Had Jake followed Sugg to shoot him down from ambush? He was a sullen revengeful brute. No doubt the humiliation of the other man's scornful defiance of him had spread like poison through his system until nothing but murder could wipe out the disgrace.

The first duty that lay before Bob was to warn Sugg, the second to stand by him.

Jake Hickory would not be alone. It was the custom of members of the gang to ride in couples if not in larger groups. Bob thought it would be worth while knowing how many of them were in Tecumseh.

Lee returned to his room at the hotel. His idea was to lie on the bed and think out what he had better do. It was important that he discover what the Hickorys and Sugg were up to. There was no urgency about getting Todd back to Boggy river country. That could wait.

Generally speaking guns were a nuisance. Only kids and bad men carried them. But with the Hickorys in his neighborhood the situation was different. He would get his.

He passed through the hotel lobby and up the stairs. Turning the corner at the landing he saw a man standing in the hall under the light of a coal oil lamp attached to the wall. It was Cass Hickory. He was hesitating whether to take the corridor to the right or the one to the left.

Bob stayed in the darkness of the stairway until Cass turned left then followed quietly to the second floor. He saw Cass knock at a door at the end of the hall and a moment later disappear. Bob tiptoed forward to his own room and entered it.

As he lit a lamp on the table Bob grinned wryly. If some of the Hickorys had taken the adjoining room they were probably unaware of the identity of the occupant next door. But by this time they might have found out that he was in town. This was not a healthy spot for Bob Lee. It would be safer to sleep in the brush.

He undid the bed roll, took out his .45, and retied the blankets. Feet clumped along the passage. The sound stopped outside his door and a voice said, "This room, I reckon." Knuckles tapped on the panel.

Bob did not answer. His fingers slid down over his gun.

The door opened and two men came into the room.

Rush Greer and Ed Hickory stared at Lee, a vast surprise in their eyes. It was clear they had not learned he was in town.

Greer's red beard jutted out. "What the hell you doing here?" he demanded.

Hickory said nothing. Impressions jerkily flooded his mind.

"That's what I'm asking you, Rush," Bob replied coldly.

"The fool's spying on us," Ed blurted out.

"Spying on you for what?" Bob inquired.

Ed had made a mistake and he hurried to cover it. "For nothing. Just because you hate us. And because you're too big for yore pants. You might have known it wasn't safe to crowd us, but you haven't a lick of sense. You're through, Lee."

"One man's opinion," Bob flung back. "Get out."

"Sure," Greer cried, and retreated into the hall. His voice lifted in a shout: "Come on boys. Hell's broke loose. That fool Bob Lee has got the drop on Ed."

Out of the next room Cass came fast, gun in hand. A stride behind him was Sugg. The excited voice of the promoter ripped along the corridor. "No shooting," he shouted. "I'll fix this." He lunged in front of Cass, jolting the younger man to one side with his shoulder.

"Listen, all of you. Put up your guns."

Lee's .45 still pointed at the floor. The sight of Sugg with the Hickorys was unexpected but reassuring. "Cool off your friends, Mr. Sugg," he advised. "I'm not yearning for trouble."

The thick sinewy fingers of Greer fastened over Cass' wrist and forced down the weapon. "Don't go crazy, boy," he warned.

From Sugg staccato words came fast. "No killing. Not now. Lee isn't spying on you. He's looking for a job."

Heavy footsteps sounded in the hall. A harsh voice wanted to know what the rookus was.

Bob said, with the ironic levity that often took hold of him at the approach of danger, "Brother Jake coming to the party."

Jake stood in the doorway, his black eye narrowing. They rested on his enemy. "What you waitin' for?" he demanded. "Brush him down."

Sugg talked fast. "No, Jake. You're just passing through the country. He's riding the chuck line. Just chance you met. None of us want sheriffs and marshals buzzing around, do we? He's only a mouthy kid. Call it off."

"If he isn't hunting trouble why has he got a gun?" Cass asked fiercely.

"Because the room is full of Hickorys on the prod," Bob cut back. "Take it easy, Cass. I'm not collecting wolf scalps today—unless you're set to have it that way."

Sugg murmured something into Jake's ear. Jake listened sullenly. He shook the man's hand from his arm, but he could not shake the wisdom of what he was being told.

Sullenly the Hickorys and Greer followed Sugg from the room. Bob gathered up his scanty belongings and left the hotel. He saddled and rode out of town.

Now that the danger was past, shudders of fear ran up and down Bob's back. Twice his enemies had held their hands. The first time had been understandable. With J. A. Broderick siding him, Jake had not dared attack. But what had stopped them now? Not fear of him. There were too many of them, and they were too tough to stand back on that account, even though they liked to do their killing from ambush. No scruples about killing had stayed their hands.

For some reason it had been inadvisable to rub him out then. Why?

What puzzled Bob most was Sugg's part in the adventure. Apparently the Hickorys had come to his room by appointment. Back of his efforts to keep the guns from roaring there had been something personal. A hint of it had crept into his words. They did not want any killing now, he had said, to stir up sheriffs and marshals.

Sugg, cold and selfish, played his own hand all the time. To prevent trouble he had run the risk of being shot down himself. Nor could Bob see why the Hickorys deferred so much to Sugg.

Well back in the brush Bob picketed his horse. A drizzling rain had begun to fall. He slept cold in his blankets, waking from time to time. Light was just sifting into the sky when he arose. The rain had stopped, but the morning was breaking chill. He pulled the picket pin that fastened his horse and saddled. His muscles were stiff and sore. The cold bit into his flesh. As he tightened the cinch he hummed cheerfully:

"I ain't got a sweetheart,
I ain't got a sweetheart,
I ain't got a sweetheart,
To sit and talk with me.
I'm a poor lonesome cowboy,
I'm a poor lonesome cowboy,
I'm a poor lonesome cowboy,
And a long way from home."

At a livery stable in town he saw that Blaze was watered and fed. Then he slipped through the back door of the Old Trail restaurant into the kitchen. To the Chinese cook he said, grinning at him, amiably, "Coffee, Charley, hot."

The cook looked at him stonily. "My name Wing Lee. You go tiont sit down."

Bob stretched toward the Oriental a hand with a silver dollar in it. "Same name here—Bob Lee. I slept out in the rain and want to warm by yore fire. Forget the front room and let me eat here."

Wing pocketed the dollar. "That diflent," he said calmly. "You like ham, eggs, flapjacks?"

"Crazy about them," Bob replied.

He stood back of the stove while the cook prepared his breakfast. Warmth flowed through him. He drank three cups of coffee, ate eggs, ham, and two stacks of hot cakes, and by that time felt like a new man.

"I reckon you have a wife and children at Canton," he hazarded.

"Seven," Wing Lee answered.

"Seven wives?" Bob asked innocently. "I'd call that quite some."

"Seven childlen, one wife," the man with the queue reproved. "Me good Clistian."

Bob gave him another dollar. He said it was for the little Christians.

"Feeding many strangers this morning?" he asked.

Wing Lee hitched a thumb toward the dining room. Bob opened the swing door a crack and took a look. Rush Greer and Cass Hickory sat at one table, Hiram Sugg at another. Sugg appeared unacquainted with the others. Jake and Ed came into the restaurant and took a third table, giving no sign that they knew those already seated. Evidently they did not want it known that they were one party.

"More strangers, Wing," Bob told the proprietor. "You're doing a rushing business."

He left by the back door, circled an adjoining building, and came out on the main street. Two horses stirred the dust, moving toward him. Bob stepped back into a store. The riders were Bart Hickory and a worthless scamp who lived at Boggy Depot named Phil Ralston. They passed at a road gait, heading north. Whatever their destination, they were not going home. Twenty minutes later Rush Greer and Cass followed them.

Bob strolled along the sidewalk to the stage office. He intended to take the same direction later. But there was no hurry. Three pairs of strangers could not ride a road in this sparsely settled country unobserved. He could cut sign on them by making inquiries.

When the stage for McAlester and Krebs was about to leave, Sugg came out of the hotel carrying his grip. No doubt he was returning home. He stopped at sight of Bob.

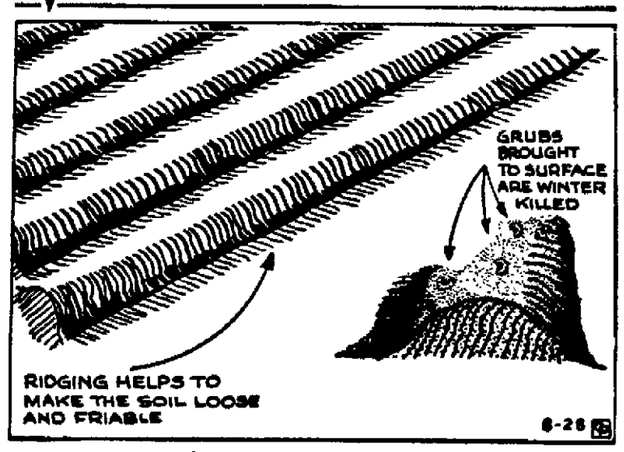
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Preparing Victory Garden Soil for Over-Winter.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Release by Central Press Association.

WHEN THE harvest is in, do not neglect the Victory garden, thinking the season is over. You can improve next year's crops by preparing the Victory garden soil for over-winter. If cover crops are not to be planted, then heavy soils are best dug and left rough until planting time in the spring.

Ridging, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, helps to make the soil more loose and friable. Ridging improves the soil by leaving it exposed to the action of frosts, and in the small garden takes the place of fall plowing.

The soil, after being dug, should be left in parallel ridges, as illustrated, so that as large a surface area as possible is exposed to the action of frost, snow and rain.

Ridging also helps to bring to the surface many grubs, as illustrated which are then killed by freezing or are eaten by the birds.

MANSFIELD BUSINESS IN REVIEW

LIQUOR SUPPLY ADEQUATE AT SOUTHERN BAR

Cocktail Lounge Proves Popular Retreat For War Workers.

You can't do your best bit toward winning the war if you let yourself get the doldrums. It's a patriotic custom to plan an evening of fun at least one evening a week and a short siesta from work every day.

An excellent spot for gathering with friends or family for an hour or an evening is the cocktail lounge of Hotel Southern. Here an atmosphere as cheering as a glass of old wine coaxes the relaxation every war worker needs for added efficiency on the job.

The management of Hotel Southern suggests, too, that you double your own enjoyment when you plan an evening of fun here by entertaining the service man on leave. You will be making a real contribution to the pleasure of his furlough.

"Dad" Slimmer, one of Mansfield's veteran barmen, has won an enviable reputation among connoisseurs of really good mixed drinks with the concoctions that he sends over the Hotel Southern bar. And "Dad" isn't hampered by shortages of the principal ingredients in his drinks either. He is happy that, although not all brands are available, a majority of requests may still be granted.

On days like these "Dad" Slimmer suggests one of his tall, tasty gin drinks for invigorating refreshments.

Newcomers to Mansfield will be interested, too, in the large, well ventilated rooms available at Hotel Southern. Many of these attractively decorated, immaculate rooms overlook the cool beauty of Central park. Either weekly or monthly rates may be arranged by conferring with Carl W. Horchler, resident manager of Hotel Southern, Mansfield's friendly hostelry.

In peacetime, 17,500 excursion trains ran every year in Britain.

Ethyl Battin Points to the Dance As Personality-Health Builder

Foundation of Ballet Training Essential Miss Battin Says

In addition to directing classes at the Dance Studio, 22½ South Main street, Miss Ethyl Battin is ardently interested in helping to contribute to the lives of Mansfield's young people all the joy of expression, the refreshing relaxation and the cultural growth that dancing can bring.

It is with this in mind, at a time when respite from the hurried activity of a war world is most desired, that she urges dance training, realizing what it can do toward building health and character and personality.

Miss Battin believes that ballet technique is essential to a study of any phase of the dance. "Dancing," she says, "has a firm foundation of real technique. It is not an aimless fluttering here and there. It's rules and principles are just as scientific and just as important as the rules and principles of any other art."

When questioned regarding Barre technique, Miss Battin answers with an air of finality, "Can you become a dressmaker before learning to sew seams?"

Miss Battin shares the belief of authorities on the subject of child psychology that dancing goes far toward giving health and a perfect body to a child, and is, in addition, a great social asset. One of the important secrets of social success, it is believed, is the ability to entertain and the person who contributes the most to the pleasure of others is in greatest demand.

Even the ancient Greeks knew the value of dancing as an aid to health and beauty, Miss Battin points out. Beauty was the Greek ideal and then, as now, she says, a light and buoyant step, head up and back straight was respected and considered to be one of the important essentials in gaining success. Even Socrates, one of the fathers of human reasoning, was an enthusiastic dancer.

"Perfect carriage is the result of perfect health and dancing is the most pleasant, as well as one of the best ways of achieving it," she declares.

The power of dancing as a personality builder cannot be overemphasized, Miss Battin states. She says, "Personality is strength, both mental and physical, and lack of strength results in fear and the suppression of laughter, humor, kindliness and love. Dancing offers an outlet for thoughts and emotions and gives health that conquers fear and overcomes the inhibitions that fear imposes."

In speaking of the health and poise that dance training brings, Miss Battin suggests that arms are accustomed to moving in every direction but legs, although equipped for just as many varieties of movements, ordinarily perform only a few.

Certain muscles are used in walking or running, skipping or jumping but most of the leg muscles are used so little that they are almost paralyzed. The nerves that control these muscles are not accustomed to taking orders from the brain and consequently it takes time to teach these muscles to function properly and to move freely and smoothly.

It takes time, too, for the muscles to become used to this new order of things and hence those just beginning their dance training seem awkward as they attempt new exercises and steps. But practice will soon end this. Everyone can be trained to grace, Miss Battin states, and awkwardness only signifies lack of training and lack of practice.

One of the important war time tasks of the dancing teacher, Miss Battin whose hobby is her profession, believes, is to teach Americans, both old and young, how to relax. "More than that," she goes on, "we must teach them how to conserve their energy, how to save tired muscles from strain and how to put rhythm into their work. This we can do with dance training. And we feel that this is our most important contribution to the war effort."

Miss Ethyl Battin, director of the Dance Studio, is shown above seated at the desk in her reception room and office, 22½ South Main street.

KING BORIS GROWS WEAKER

Berlin Reports on Bulgarian Monarch's Condition as Bern Sees Abdication.

peared certain" that the illness of King Boris of Bulgaria "would have as a consequence his abdication."

It was said that Premier Bogdan Philov was already working on the problem of succession. The telephoned dispatch passed the censorship at Vienna. It gradually declared that the nature of the illness was unknown.

No responsible informant here would confirm the rumor that the king had been shot, a report that was published abroad.

The Bulgarian legation said the monarch had suffered a heart attack after first saying it did not know the cause of the illness. Other quarters lacked information.

The Gazette De Lusanne declared that the "announced aggravation" of the king's illness had inspired an "agitation without parallel among Bulgarian political circles."

It said the first impression had been that the king's illness was "diplomatic" because the "king upon his return from Germany expressed the intention to decrease the pro-Axis policy."

The king's decision was said to have been reached upon conclusion that it would be dangerous for his dynasty to comply with the new Nazi demands, including total military and economic mobilization, creation of a new fortified line on the Turkish frontier and giving full police powers to the Germans to clean up Communists in Bulgaria.

The newspaper said many armed police were circulating in the streets of Sofia, and that Premier Bogdan Philov "is occupying himself to arrange the problem of succession which is especially delicate" in view of the youth of Crown Prince Kyril.

It said the chief of the opposition, a man named Mousounov, "a great friend of the democracies," was participating in the conferences and was standing adamant against any military dictatorship in Bulgaria "such as that by Marshal Premier Pietro Badoglio in Italy."

The resultant critical situation led consulates abroad to refuse both entry and transit visas to Bulgaria.

Program Furnished by Guests at Garden Club

Mrs. H. J. Paulsen was a guest speaker Friday at the meeting of the Cottage Garden club which was held at the home of Miss Florence Gernhardt, 579 Sloane avenue, Mrs. J. H. Petree assisted. Luncheon was served at one o'clock after which a business session was held in charge of Mrs. S. A. Richardson.

Nineteen were present for the program which was given by Mrs. Ruth Secrist of Bellville, and Mrs. Paulsen. Mrs. Secrist sang three songs, "Primrose" by Grieg; "Could Be My Songs Their Way Be Winging" by Hahn; and "Out of My Soul's Great Sadness" by Franz. Miss Gernhardt was the accompanist.

Mrs. Paulsen spoke on "Flower Arrangements In Your Home." She displayed flower holders and pottery suitable for arrangements. She also demonstrated the use of fresh garden flowers in attractive gift wrapping. Using various types of table coverings and backgrounds she displayed many novel arrangements she had made, explaining that the shape of the bouquet must suit the container, the type of house and the wall space that forms the background.

The next meeting will be held Sept. 10 at the home of Mrs. H. D. Smith, 650 Dickson Parkway, with Mrs. G. H. Smith as associate. Mrs. C. F. Sheriff will give the topic, "Dead Minerals Come to Life."

PUBLIC SEES NEW TIRE TEST

Synthetics Given 500-Mile Try-Out at Indianapolis, Other Trials Planned.

(By Associated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS — What was described as the first public test of synthetic rubber tires began on the Indianapolis speedway today when an ersatz-tired automobile started a 500-mile cruise around the famous oval at a steady speed of 35 miles an hour.

Arthur F. Grant, spokesman for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, sponsor of the test, said it had the approval of Rubber Director William Jeffers as the first in a series of similar public demonstrations.

"We already know," said Don Waugh, test supervisor, "that synthetic rubber tires can yield perhaps even better mileage than the best pre-Pearl Harbor natural tires if proper speeds and driving conditions are maintained."

Thirty-six tires will be used on the car during the Indianapolis test and demonstrations on Pike's Peak. The Bonneville flats in Utah, Chicago's streets, cross-country roads of all types, Waugh said. He expected to complete the speedway test late today and then head for Chicago.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, August 29.

SUNDAY'S horoscope favors all serious work, and also ecclesiastics, thinkers and those disposed to take things with a critical eye. Elders, employers and those in authority would be best to seek out for favors and co-operation in any field of practical endeavor. Application and faithful industry should merit due rewards, of a substantial nature.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared to work with diligence and fidelity, in the interest of substantial bodies, taking their work seriously, with the idea of endurance and security in forthcoming rewards of honest effort. Elders, superiors or employers should not be found lacking in proper appreciation and co-operation.

For Monday, August 30.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a fair share of activity and good fortune, in which there is much satisfaction. Utilize all avenues for rewards and tokens of preferment. Reckless or impulsive tendencies should be firmly regulated lest there be disaster or regrets. Probable accidents are indicated.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an active and productive year, with employers and others ready to be generous with rewards and promotions, but an impulse to act rashly or with stressed ardor, or emotional strains, should be regulated.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

A chorus of assents from the Veritzens, from Katharine and from Dicky and me greeted my father's query. He did not speak for a second, smiling at us all and evidently enjoying the dramatic suspense which he was building up.

"First," he said, "she took as devious a route back — once she had completed her interview with Redfield—as she had done in approaching his hideaway. Then she went back to the Myers apartment, and my trailers, except the one always on guard there, went away thinking she was safely kenneled. But in less than ten minutes a private car drew up to the door, driven by a plump woman of respectable appearance.

Prepare for Emergency.

"For two days I have kept a taxi just around the corner from the Myers apartment, waiting for the very emergency which confronted my guard when a tall woman, dressed in mourning and heavily veiled, came out of the Myers apartment and entered the private car. The elevator operator and the janitor piled several pieces of luggage into the car and it drove off, closely trailed by my man in the taxicab, for he was certain the woman in mourning was the one he had been instructed to trail.

"This time" my father went on, "she did not take a circuitous route, but drove to this hotel and went directly to a suite on the floor above this. She is not registered—she but this minute arrived —and she has not yet contacted Milner. But I imagine that she is going to remain here — unregistered—'for the duration,' so she fancies."

There was something deadly menacing in the way he uttered the last three words, and his manner deflated the consternation with which all of us, in varying reactions, heard his news.

"Oh!" Katharine exclaimed. "That woman staying here spying on us!" Then, as the meaning of his last words sank in, she caught her breath sharply.

"You mean?—" she faltered, as the voices of the astonished exclamation of the rest of us were stilled, "that this afternoon will —"

Her voice trailed off faintly, and my father finished her sentence for her.

"Will end her activities for a long space of time, perhaps forever?" he said with a rising inflection. "That is exactly what I mean. I told you before that I hoped to accomplish this end, but I never before have been able to assert confidently that Ruth Hayes was at the end of her trail. But—if nothing unforeseen comes up—I can assure you that she never will trouble Jack or anyone else, after today.

"Thank Heaven!" Katherine breathed, and I think we all echoed her. Then we all snapped to attention as my father began to speak again, slowly, incisively.

"I can tell you all other cheering things also," he said. "By tonight, I shall have in my hands evidence enough against Redfield and against Milner so that I no longer shall need them as goats to stake out the tiger."

Philip Veritzen started impetuously to rise, then remembering his dignity, sank back in his chair again.

"You mean you are going to have them arrested?" he asked hopefully, and I realized that he disliked the task of discharging Milner and Redfield, though he repeatedly had urged my father to allow him to get rid of both the Lansfield manager and the leading man of my play.

"No, Philip," my father replied with a smile. "I do not wish to arrest them for two or three days yet. But I do wish that you would discharge them both, ostensibly for failure to satisfy you in their duties, as soon as I give you the word."

"I shall do that with pleasure," the impresario said with a grim smile, living up to his traditional role of martinet, and my father spoke again, this time in less confident fashion.

Rounding Them Up.

"We are rounding up all the lesser ones," he said, "and we are blazing a trail to the center of the conspiracy. But we as yet have been unable to get any clue to Marion's whereabouts. Miss Whitlock wrote me only yesterday that Lillian was bearing up bravely, but that she feared a break if the suspense were kept up much longer."

The telephone had been ringing while he was talking, but until he noticed it himself, no one moved to answer it. When he paused, and looked at Dicky with raised eyebrows, my husband dashed to the telephone. I knew, as he barked out: "What's that?" that something disturbing was coming over the wire.

He listened for several seconds, then said "Wait a second!" and turning to my father, putting his palm over the receiver.

"It's Ronald," he said, in hushed tones," and he seems highly excited over something. He wants to see you immediately"

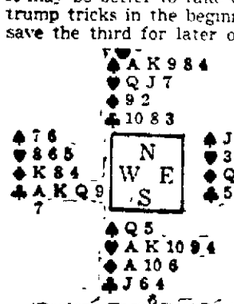
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROTECT THE SITUATION

THERE IS no point in playing a hand in a way which requires that the six missing cards of a suit be evenly divided between defenders—that is, unless there is no more likely way to make your contract. If there is a method which will work if the six hostile cards are divided four-and-two between the opponents, that is by all odds a better chance to work for. This may entail ruffing a round of the suit as a safety play, and that incidentally may necessitate having an extra entry in the dummy. If the entry can consist only of the third round of trumps, it may be better to take only two trump tricks in the beginning and save the third for later on.



(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	2 ♣	2 ♠
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥

After East ruffed the third round of clubs so as to make a diamond lead through the declarer, South had to take all of the remaining tricks. He should have, but was too much of an optimist, or else too careless, and as a consequence was set.

Deciding to discard his own losing diamonds or spades, he won ing diamonds or spades, he won posed of all the outstanding trumps with the Q, A and K, and then went to work on the spades, taking first the Q and then the A and K. West discarded on the K, however, a small club, and this left East holding the high spade. South therefore was able to get no diamond discard except the one on that spade K trick, so had to lose the setting trick in diamonds.

How easy the contract would have been if South had protected himself against the probable four-two break in spades. After winning the diamond A, he should have taken only two trump rounds, then the spade Q and A, then ruffed a third spade with a high heart. After that, he could have returned to dummy with the heart J and scored the other spades, discarding both of his own diamonds and leaving himself no losers.

Your Week-End Lesson.

Do you know the definite provisions of the new Laws of Contract Bridge on these before-the-bidding matters:

1. Reclaiming your own pack when an opponent has used it?
2. Changing the dealer or the pack?
3. When there cannot be a new deal?
4. When a new deal is optional during the deal?
5. When a new deal is compulsory during the deal?
6. The proprieties of the deal?

With only three weeks remaining of the Moose golf league season, Pete Linster is substituting for Fred Huntsman for the stretch drive.

And it's fortunate that only three weeks remain on the loop schedule, because Pete may not be around much longer than that.

He goes to Columbus Sept. 9 for service induction, and of course it all depends on what branch of the service he gets into how many more weeks he'll be at home.

His departure will be a loss not only to Mansfield golf, but to bowling as well.

Pete is the perennial league secretary, bowling and golf. On those occasions when he's been fortunate enough to slide out of the secretary's job he usually has been called back to do a large share of the work.

But the job he does best is going around with the hand out collecting merchandise prizes for the Club bowling league and the Richland county golf tournament.

It it hadn't been for Pete, I doubt if there would have been a county golf tournament the last two years.

Houston Elder, new coach at Portsmouth, is telling his gridiron heroes not to "run stiff-legged like chorus girls; don't play like the waterboys, they don't wear uniforms; and be sure you know the play coming up as you leave the huddle."

Wonder if Elder saw the Cincinnati university team of some years back that employed a revolving shift. The whole team revolved around like the Rockettes on maneuvers. It was pretty, but didn't fool anybody.

The opposition merely yawned through the floor show, then shifted the defense before the play started, and the chorus girl act went for naught.

Elder, a Kentuckian, has brought along Jim Shannon as line coach. Shannon has been head coach at Henderson, Ky., for the past five years.

That gives Portsmouth a five-man coaching staff, and indicates the Trojans are trying to get up in the gridiron world again.

Mansfield Tygers are looking forward to their Portsmouth trip Oct. 29 as their longest jaunt of the campaign. Other trips are comparatively short, to Marion, Elyria and Massillon.

Majors Back All-Star Tour

Landis and League Heads Agree on Plan.

CHICAGO —(INS)— The plan to send two teams of major league baseball players on an overseas tour of army camps received new and official impetus today.

Official, that is, as far as baseball is concerned.

The major leagues are willing Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis announced, and now its up to the war department.

* * *

"We are hopeful the plan will go through," Landis said after conferring yesterday with Presidents Ford Frick of the National league and Will Harridge of the American.

The commissioner explained that a "number of problems remain to be solved" with major league managers, players and officials, one of the remaining problems is the method of financing the trip.

Landis suggested competition between two teams, each of 18 men and representing each major league club. They will not necessarily be "All-Star" aggregations, he said, indicating the leagues would poll their players for volunteers.

Landis and the two league presidents agreed on a method of selecting the two managers, but the Judge refused to come up with details.

* * *

No preference was shown in the discussions as to where the teams would be sent, Landis said, but he added that England, Africa and the South Pacific were mentioned most often.

Henry Retires Again

Armstrong Calls It Quits After Beating.

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK —(AP)— The amazing ring saga of Henry Armstrong ended permanently at Madison Square Garden last night amid boos and catcalls at the scene of some of his greatest triumphs.

The famous career of the 32-year-old former triple title holder came to grief against the flicking fists of youthful Ray "Sugar" Robinson who waltzed to an easy 10-round decision before 15,371. The gross gate was $60,789.31.

Armstrong, in his prime regarded as one of the greatest fighters ever to hop into a ring, retired once before in January, 1941, but changed his mind last year and started a comeback that has grossed him nearly $200,000 in 27 outings.

* * *

But after the drubbing he took in losing every round to Robinson, Henry didn't mince matters. He emphasized in the dressing room that he was hanging up his gloves for keeps.

"I'm through," he said wearily. "From now on I'll manage Cecil Hudson." Hudson, a welterweight from Los Angeles, outpointed Izzy Jannazzo, New York veteran, in a six-round preliminary.

"I know it looked bad," Armstrong continued, referring to the boos from the third round on. "It's my style of fighting. If Robinson had come in, instead of staying away, it would have been different."

But Robinson, regarded in many quarters as the uncrowned welterweight champion, was content to backpedal and jab, jab, from long range. Only occasionally did he cut loose with a two-fisted savage attack that earned him a terrifying reputation. He seemed to hurt Armstrong on these occasions, but showed a healthy respect for his opponent and never followed up his advantage.

* * *

The crowd, keen for the kill, didn't like Robinson's caution and booed lustily. The skinny Harlem youth, a 4 to 1 favorite, asserted afterwards that Armstrong was the "greatest I ever fought."

Find Plenty Of Squirrels

Outlook Bright For Hunters This Season.

By ELLIS WALDRON

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Squirrel hunting prospects in Ohio this year are generally good, although a light crop of nuts in scattered sections of the state may make the bushytails elusive in those areas, state conservation officials reported today.

A survey of game agents disclosed general belief that the short squirrel season effective for the first time this year in the northern third of the state helped restore the diminished squirrel population there.

The season and bag limits this year will be the same as 1942, from Sept. 15-30 in the southern two-thirds of the state, and Sept. 22-30 in the northern part, with a daily bag limit of four and a maximum of eight squirrels in possession at any one time after the first day.

* * *

State officials said the nut crop in parts of the state has been poor this year, indicating probability that shooting will be poor in those areas, since squirrel migrate to places where they can find food.

But in general, where the nut crop is promising they believe there may be the best hunting in recent years.

Most optimistic reports came from game agents in hilly south-central Ohio and in the northwestern corner.

From Brown county east to Meigs and Athens counties and north as far as Hocking county, agents reported a "very good crop of squirrel, fairly well distributed," and a good nut crop.

In northwestern counties, south and east as far as Hardin, "prospects for the coming squirrel season are the best in recent years," according to J. L. Copeland, district game protector.

H. M. Channel, supervisor in the northeastern district south and west as far as Stark county, reported "a great number of squirrel—mostly fox and grays, with many young stock in fine condition."

He added that protection afforded by the shorter season "has brought the squirrel back in great shape."

Most detailed report, county-by-county, came from E. B. Cooke, supervisor of the fourth district in east-central Ohio.

Agents in Belmont, Carroll, Jefferson, Morgan, Muskingum, Tuscarawas and Washington counties reported a promising season, with plenty of squirrel in evidence and nut crops ranging from 50 per cent to "good."

* * *

Squirrel were reported to be abundant in Coshocton county, "fair" in Guernsey, "few" in Harrison, "plenty in spots" in Holmes, "not so good" in Monroe, and "fair" in Noble county.

The short season opening Sept. 22 will be effective in Mercer, Auglaize, Hardin, Wyandot, Crawford, Richland, Ashland, Wayne, Stark and Columbiana counties and all others to the north.

Armstrong Saves Eyes

Retirement Caused By Fading Vision.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Again we say farewell to Henry Armstrong as an active fighter. We are gratified that he earned enough money during his comeback campaign of 27 bouts to put him on "easy street" and that he apparently evaded the blindness that threatened during every venture into the ring.

* * *

Armstrong quit the ring last night because one of his headlights had become blurred. He did not quit because one of the game's greatest fighting machines had run down.

Because of threatened blindness, Armstrong was retired against his will on the night of Jan. 17, 1941, by his manager, the late Eddie Mead. That was the night when he failed to recapture the welterweight crown from Fritzie Zivic—the night when he and pug-nosed Fritzie fought before the largest indoor boxing crowd in history—23,180 persons at Madison Square Garden.

Mead, who had no more money left after Armstrong's amazing series of victories than did Armstrong, had a genuine affection for the bull-shouldered little Los Angeles Negro. After two terrific brow beatings by Zivic, he feared that Hammering Hank might go blind. He said Armstrong never would fight again as long as he held his contract, although Hank was a top attraction then. Hank didn't fight again while Mead lived. Mead dropped dead in front of his New York hotel on May 25, 1942. He was broke.

Armstrong started his comeback campaign in June, 1942, under the management of George Moore, an educated Negro whom Armstrong had asked to handle his affairs.

Whether Armstrong, the former triple champion, was broke when he started his comeback, no one knows for sure. Henry claims he still had some property in Los Angeles, despite the terrific pace he and Mead had set in expenditures during Armstrong's heyday. Anyway, Henry was out for dough; and he thought Mead's fears of blindness were unfounded.

Eastern boxing experts, who had witnessed most of Armstrong's bouts and who had seen the terrific punishment absorbed by the brows of the crouching, bobbing gladiator, groaned in apprehension at news of his comeback attempt. They remembered his eye operation after the first Zivic fight. They remembered the terrible sight of his eyes after the second Zivic brawl. They didn't want to see him go blind.

As Armstrong fought on along the comeback trail, the vision of his left eye blurred. It bothered him so much that he finally went to a Hollywood physician, Dr. Simon Jesberg. The doctor told Henry that a scar-tissue growth—similar to a cataract—was forming inside his left eyeball. He advised him to quit fighting as soon as possible.

The blur increased, Armstrong admitted last night, and—although he is signed to fight Slugger White at Los Angeles on Sept. 18—he will withdraw from that bout and never fight again. He will manage a stable of fighters in the future.

And Henry hopes that the $100,000 he earned since the death of Eddie Mead can be enjoyed in sunshine—not in darkness.

Westies Defeat Loudonville Club

Westinghouse softballers saved their big guns for the late frames last night at Loudonville as they turned in an 8-2 victory. But Loudonville was never even after the Westies chalked up their first marker in the fourth.

George Schaeffer continued his heavy hitting with a home run and single in five trips.

Stub Winebrenner fanned 11 batters and held Loudonville to five hits.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— It's hard to blast a fellow who has given fight fans their money's worth as often as Hank Armstrong but Hennery's announcement last night he was through with boxing, except as manager of Cecil Hudson, was long overdue . . . We never saw Armstrong at his best, but we'd much prefer to remember him as the little fellow who won three world championships and lost them gamely than as the outworn prize fighter who shifted around the ring swaying his head like a sea lion begging for a fish . . . With that weaving style, Henry was as hard to hit as the swinging target in a shooting gallery—and Ray Robinson didn't win any marksmanship medals.

Tigers Drop To 5th Slot

Galehouse Twirls 3-1 Victory For Browns.

(By International News Service)

The Detroit Tigers, which only a few days ago bode fair to hold second place in the American league, today were back in the fifth slot—and might have found themselves even further down the list but for the fact that a weak Boston team trailed so far behind.

* * *

Denny Galehouse hurled the St. Louis Browns to a 3 to 1 victory over the Tigers. Hal Newhouser chalked up his ninth straight loss, after the Browns peppered him with runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings. The Detroit single run came in the last tally when Dick Wakefield knocked out a trible scoring on Stephen's error and depriving Galehouse of a shutout.

* * *

The Cleveland Indians broke a two-all tie in the eighth frame last night with three runs and went the whole way to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 6 to 2. A fourth-inning homer by Luke Appling tied the score but Mickey Rocco in his return to the Indian lineup after a layoff due to a sprained back, touched off a Cleveland rally with a single. Al Smith went all the way for the Tribe, wining his 13th win of the year.

* * *

The Chicago Cubs took their second in a row from the Pittsburgh Pirates last night, when Claude Passeau set the Buccaneers down with five hits, 3 to 2. Bob Klinger started for the Pirates, but after being tagged for seven hits and all the Cub runs was relieved by Bill Brandt in the sixth. Brandt allowed only one safety.

* * *

The Cincinnati Reds last night cut the St. Louis Cardinals' lead in the National league to only 11½ games, before the biggest crowd ever to witness a Cincinnati night game. The Cards dropped the contest, 3 to 2.

No other teams were scheduled in either league.

Ferguson Auditors Defeat Chillicothe.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ferguson Auditors of Columbus, defending champions of the state softball tournament, take on the West Side Cabs of Dayton tonight in their second game of the 1943 event after eliminating National Fireworks of Chillicothe, 7-2, in a first round game.

Keeping pace with the titlists were Lima Locomotive, which trimmed Akron Firestone, 5-4 in a 13-inning contest, and Fostoria Screws, which blasted Zanesville Armco, 6-2, in eight innings.

In the only women's game of opening day, Pauline Sells turned in a no-hit performance for Columbus J. K. Shoes in shutting out Lima City Loan, 8-0.

Warren Gerber, Ferguson pitcher, gave up five hits, one of them a homer by Pitcher Harry Strawser, in beating Chillicothe. Gerber also homered with one on in the fifth inning.

Lima broke a deadlock in the 13th inning, after six scoreless frames, to put Akron out of the running. Pellegrini's triple and a fielder's choice produced the winning counter.

Today's schedule:

Holds Batting Lead 6 Weeks

Stan Musial Continues To Pace National Loop.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals continued to pace major league batters for the sixth straight week as he boosted his average from .349 to .351 for 120 games, official averages showed today.

Luke Appling, Chicago White Sox veteran infielder, remained at the head of the American league with a .331 mark for 120 games.

St. Louis held the National league club hitting edge with .279 while Cincinnati retained the defensive lead with a .982 fielding average. In the American league, the Philadelphia Athletics jumped ahead of New York and Cleveland with a .975 defensive mark while Detroit's .262 hitting kept it in front.

Rip Sewell of the Pirates remained the top pitching winner with 19 won against five lost. Spud Chandler of the Yankees headed the rival American circuit with a 16 and 3 record.

Takes Title In Shootoff

Dayton War Worker Wins Grand American.

By FRITZ HOWELL

VANDALIA — (AP) — The most surprised man in the world, 35-year-old Jasper Rogers of Dayton, had about $1,600 with which to buy war bonds today after an amazing finish in the Grand American trapshoot.

Rogers, a war plant tool-maker, won trapdom's No. 1 prize, the Grand American handicap, by defeating five others in a 50-target shootoff after the sextet had tied at 97 of 100, lowest score to win the event since 1931.

With only two targets to go in the shootoff, Rogers was one clay behind Paul Wagner, Lima, O., salesman, who looked like a certain winner after breaking the first 23 in a row. But Wagner missed the last pair to drop to second place and Rogers found himself in possession of the crown.

Rogers' victory kept alive the tradition that "unknowns from nowhere" always win the handicap. The new champion never had broken more than 92 of 100 before.

While Rogers was slipping in the back door for the handicap's championship, Seaman Rudy Etchen, shooting instructor at navy pier, Chicago, repeated as the national doubles king with 96 of 100, breaking the last 65 without a miss.

The feminine end of the handicap went to 17-year-old "Skipper" Winski of Wellsburg, W. Va., who cracked 90 of 100 from 17 yards.

The all-around championship went to Herschel Cheek, police chief of Clinton, Ind., who broke 478 of 500 in the doubles, 16-yard handicap divisions.

Al Smith Hurls Neat Victory Over Chisox

Allows Only Six Hits In Taking Fourth Straight From Dykesmen.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Of the 13 games Al Smith has won this year, his four straight triumphs over Jimmy Dykes' Chicago White Sox probably have given him the greatest satisfaction.

After the Cleveland Indians secured the National league castoff from Buffalo four years ago, the Sox pilot remarked contemptuously "that guy's fast ball couldn't break a pane of glass."

The veteran southpaw allowed only six hits as the Tribe defeated the Pale Hose 6 to 2 last night to break a third place tie and move within half a game of the runner-up Washington Nationals.

The Sox southpawing Smith, Edgar, kept pace with his namesake for the first seven innings but folded in the eighth when the Indians broke a 2-all deadlock with a trio of runs.

Triples by Russ Peters and Hank Edwards and a single by Jeff Heath gave the Tribe a pair of markers in the opening stanza but Ray Mack's wild throw in the third and Luke Appling's homer in the following frame knotted the count.

Mickey Rocco started the Indians' eighth-inning attack with a single and Roy Cullenbine's double moved him to third. Edgar then uncorked a wild pitch to let one run across. Heath walked and was forced by Buddy Rosar as Cullenbine scored. Rosar moved to second as Dick Culler threw wild trying for a double play and crossed the plate on Oris Hockett's single. Smith, Peters and Rocco singled in succession for Cleveland's final run in the ninth.

BUCKY STOPS CARDS

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Bucky Walters last night, before the largest crowd of the season to witness a Cincinnati Reds game under the Crosley field lights, mastered the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, 3 to 2.

* * *

The Cards got their two runs in the second and third innings, but after the fourth frame, Bucky began to "fog 'em in" and only one Red Bird was able to connect safely.

The Reds bunched three hits in the fourth inning to tie the score, Frank McCormick smacking a double after singles by Max Marshall and Bert Haas. Marshall was the hitting star of the evening with four safeties and Bert Haas got three out of four trips to the plate.

Walters wound up the game in a blaze of glory by fanning two pinch-hitters in the ninth inning. Howie Krist was the loser.

Manager Billy Southworth of the Cards is sending his ace, Morton Cooper, against Ray Starr in today's game.

UNEVEN PRICE LIST CLOUDS MARKET TREND

Higher Food Prices Hinted by Administrator Jones to Cover Farm Costs.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Slightly uneven tendencies were displayed by leading stocks in today's early market transactions.

Up fractionally at a slow opening was U. S. Steel. Lower prices were posted for American Can, Allied Chemical, Goodyear and General Electric.

Boardmen found a constructive indicator in the satement of War Food Administrator Marvin Jones that the administration would support farm prices at a level high enough to cover "the added risks and hazards that go with increased production."

CHICAGO—(AP)—Grains opened on good advances today as the tight situation in feed grains continued unchanged. Traders appeared to be bullishly influenced by the statement last night of War Food Administrator Marvin Jones that farm prices will be supported by the government at levels high enough to cover the added "risks and hazards" involved in the increased food output plans.

Wheat started ⅛-⅝c higher. Sept. $1.46, oats gained ¼-⅝c with the September contract at a new 23-year peak of 74½c, and rye was ahead ⅝-⅞c. Sept. $1.04½-¼.

OWI MAN KILLED

LONDON —(INS)— A Reuter's dispatch from Allahabad, India, said today that Robert Rand, director of the United States Office of War Information in Calcutta, was killed in a plane crash yesterday. Details of the crash were not available.

THEATERS

Beauties on Parade.

Movie audiences will see 12 months pass before their eyes in as many minutes in the musical comedy technical color film, "DuBarry Was a Lady," which opens today at the Ohio theater. The quick 12-month review is the film's Esquire number in which a beauty parades before the camera for each month of the year. The picture features Red Skelton, Lucille Ball, Gene Kelly, Virginia O'Brien, "Rags" Ragland and Tommy Dorsey's musicians. The fun begins when Skelton, a check room attendant, is slipped a Mickey Finn and goes off in dreamland where things begin to happen.

Romantic Flight.

A girl and a man fly from New York to Philadelphia for an appetizer and to New Orleans for coffee in RKO Radio's "Flight for Freedom," dramatic love stories starring Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray, which opens at the Madison today.

The exciting action hinges on the experiences of an ambitious woman flier who sets out to break all existing records and finds herself drafted for a secret mission by the United States navy. It is a story which could not have been filmed before Pearl Harbor, and includes episodes of the present global war. Co-feature is "Alaska Highway" featuring Richard Arden and Jean Parker.

Story of Americans.

The screen version of William Saroyan's "The Human Comedy," comes to the Ritz theater tomorrow with Mickey Rooney heading a cast including Frank Morgan, James Craig, Marsha Hunt, Fay Bainter and several other outstanding Hollywood players. A timely story of Americans today, "The Human Comedy" offers Rooney an opportunity to run the gamut of dramatic emotions. He laughs, cries, rages, sings, runs races, and is humanly tender. "Rire Tenderfoot Ride" is the co-feature starring Gene Autry.

other big Allied push had been blueprinted, but said it could be revealed only by the operations of military forces.

They said they had assured Russia that "full reports" of the decisions made affecting the war against Germany and Italy would be communicated, and offered hope of arranging a future "tripartie meeting" between the U. S., Britain, and the Soviet Union. Pre-occupation of the conferees with the war on Japan precluded the presence of Josef Stalin at the Quebec meeting since Russia and Japan are at peace.

Mountbatten is understood to have had virtually no advance notice of his selection as Allied commander and consequently still has before him the prime task of assembling a staff.

He undoubtedly will select a British officer for his chief of staff, and it was said he already has obtained an important U. S. officer as his deputy chief of staff.

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said Thursday that Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell, commander of U. S. forces in the India-Burma-China theater, would be retained in a "very important capacity," and it was considered a good bet that Maj. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, newly-chosen commander of U. S. air forces, would become Mountbatten's air commander.

A meeting between Mountbatten and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of Allied forces in the Southwest Pacific, is expected to precede a major drive against the Japs in Burma. This and his anticipated talks in London and Chungking are expected to postpone the date of the big push.

Most predictions have been that the drive will start in October when the Monsoon rains end in India and Burma.

be required to file declarations in order to place all taxpayers on an equal basis.

Many do not realize that the withholding tax does not automatically make all persons current on their 1943 incomes, Louis J. Campbell, acting collector of internal revenue, said. He also asked employers to be prepared, if requested, to give their employees a preliminary statement of the withholding deductions for each payroll period, and the amount of victory tax withheld in the first six months, to help them compute their estimated total withholdings for the year.

The forms must be filed by Sept. 15 and payment of at least half the amount of the balance of 1943 tax is due at that time.

traro and Paola, with army Havoc invaders playing a major role in the bombing and strafing of roads and communications.

The preceding night, British Wellington bombers pounded Salerno.

On the whole, it was a most successful day for the Allied air force in the skies over Italy. The Sulmona raid lasted only 12 minutes, with the Fortresses precision-dropping tons of high explosives on the target area.

Four separate formations of Mitchells, and RAF-manned Boston bombers laced Catanzaro and played havoc with the communication bottleneck there despite heavy flak. Invader pilots reported that the vital Sibari junction was completely destroyed.

The Salerno railroad yards suffered the heaviest blow as British and Canadian Wellingtons covered the target with "a great many" two-ton blockbusters, starting huge fires and causing terrific explosions.

FEELING BETTER THIS MORNING, MRS. BETTS?
YES, BETH, MUCH BETTER, BUT WEAK. WHAT A SILLY OLD FOOL I AM TO ACT AS I DID LAST NIGHT.
8-23
I MUST TELL YOU! I THOUGHT I HEARD MY HUSBAND'S VOICE IN MY ROOM LAST NIGHT. NOW WASN'T THAT IDIOTIC?
WELL, WE KNOW NO ONE WAS THERE, NOT WITH ALL OF THE WINDOWS BARRED AND THE DOORS ALL LOCKED.
YES, IT WAS JUST MY TATTERED NERVES, PLAYING TRICKS.
A DAY OR TWO OF REST IN BED WILL FIX ALL THAT.
YOU REALLY THINK MRS. BETTS NEEDS YOU, DO YOU?
DAD, SHE'S ON THE VERGE OF A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN THIS MINUTE. I'VE STOCKED THE REFRIGERATOR FOR YOU AND PREPARED SOME THINGS.
YOU MEN WILL JUST HAVE TO GET ALONG WITHOUT ME FOR A DAY OR TWO. THINK YOU CAN DO IT?
SURE!
I SUPPOSE SO, AFTER A FASHION.
8-24
MIGHT JUST AS WELL LET HER GO! SHE'D ONLY BE UNHAPPY, THINKING OF THAT WOMAN ALONE.
FORGRAVE
NOW I DON'T WONDER AT MRS. BETTS' FRAIL HEALTH. THE FOOD SHE LIVES ON! NO EGGS, NO BUTTER.
8-25
NOT MUCH ELSE BUT TEA AND CRACKERS, AND A BIT OF DRIED FRUIT. IT'S A MARVEL SHE'S ALIVE AT ALL!
FORGRAVE
SOME FRESH VEGETABLES WOULD DO HER WORLDS OF GOOD. WHILE SHE GETS HER NAP I'LL SLIP DOWN TO OUR GARDEN!
THIS STUFF SHOULD PUT SOME COLOR IN MRS. BETTS' CHEEKS. WHY, THERE'S THE POSTMAN HEADED FOR HER GATE NOW.
8-26
I'M GOING IN THERE, MR. STROWD. CAN'T I SAVE YOU THE TRIP?
YOU CAN, IF YOU WILL, BETH. THANKS!
HERE'S SOMETHING TO READ WHILE I SCRATCH UP A BITE FOR US TO EAT.
WHAT? FOR ME? WHY, THAT'S THE FIRST LETTER I'VE HAD IN MONTHS! NOW WHO-?
FORGRAVE
NOW IF I CAN GET MRS. BETTS TO EAT JUST HALF OF THIS, I'LL FEEL SATISFIED.
8-27
FORGRAVE
I HOPE YOU'VE GOT A GOOD APPETITE, MRS. BETTS!
APPETITE? I SHOULD SAY I HAVE! I'VE NEVER HAD A BETTER ONE! I CAN EAT ALL THAT!
WHY, MRS. BETTS! WHAT'S COME OVER YOU? YOU LOOK POSITIVELY JOYFUL!
I AM JOYFUL! THIS LETTER! THIS LETTER YOU BROUGHT ME!
THAT LETTER MUST HAVE BROUGHT YOU WONDERFUL NEWS TO MAKE YOU LOOK SO HAPPY!
YES, BETH. IN IT'S WAY IT'S WONDERFUL. AND IN A WAY SAD NEWS.
AND I SUPPOSE I SHOULD TAKE SHAME TO MYSELF FOR FEELING AS I DO!
WHAT? ASHAMED OF FEELING HAPPY? THE IDEA! YOU SHOULDN'T SAY THAT!

Navy Secretary Says Japanese Offensive Stopped, Foe Uses New Strategy.

(By International News Service)

HAMILTON, N. Y. — Secretary of the Navy Knox strongly hinted today of the opening of second front operations in Europe in the "coming days and weeks and months," and reiterated his disclosure of a year ago that United Nations strategy contemplates knocking Germany out of the war first.

Knox spoke at the navy convocation-college commencement at Colgate university. During the ceremonies, he received the honorary degree doctor of laws, and later reviewed the Colgate navy regiment.

"While we are achieving a complete victory in Europe," he said, "I can assure you that the mobilization and deployment of our growing might will be pursued in the Pacific—as the Japanese are now learning to their cost."

"The Axis enemy in Europe has felt the impact of hammer blows which have steadily increased in force," Knox asserted. "And, I can assure you that the tempo of this attack will not slacken with the coming days and weeks and months; it will mount with such frenzy that the enemy will not merely reel and totter, but will crumble in final defeat."

The navy secretary declared that, since Pearl Harbor, "the bulk of the navy's fighting sea and air power has been employed in the Pacific theater and will remain there to grow until Tojo's final day is done."

While Knox appeared confident of ultimate victory in the eastern as well as western theaters of war, he cautioned the public against any feeling of complacency.

"Despite their losses," he de-

Receive Blanks For '43 Income Tax Estimates

Thousands of Mansfield and Richland county income taxpayers today received blanks for declarations of estimated income for the calendar year 1943 from the district internal revenue office.

While most taxpayers will not be required to file the declaration because they are paying their tax in full through the withholding deductions made by their employers, all taxpayers were urged to read carefully the instruction sheet which accompanied the forms to determine whether they are required to make a declaration.

Generally speaking, single persons earning over $2,700 a year or married persons earning over $3,500 a year; those with outside incomes, such as from dividends, interest, rents; professional fees or business profits; and those classes not subject to withholdings, such as persons in the armed forces, clergymen, domestic servants and farm labor, will all

King Boris Now Weaker, Berlin Says

Bern Sees Abdication As Rumors Say Monarch Was Wounded.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — The condition of King Boris of Bulgaria "again deteriorated in consequence of weakened heart activity," the Berlin radio reported today in a DNB dispatch from Sofia.

The broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, said the communique was issued by the court physician at 1 p m (7 a m, Eastern War Time).

DNB reported that the Bulgarian radio interrupted its program to broadcast the communique twice.

A communique issued an hour before said the 49-year-old monarch "had a quiet night" but that lung disturbances had not yet been eliminated" and that his condition "continues to be serious."

Another DNB dispatch reported that all members of the Bulgarian cabinet, high military officers and members of the king's civilian and military entourage attended services today at the Alexander Nevski cathedral in Sofia at which prayers were offered for the king's recovery.

A dispatch from Ankara said a brief announcement of the king's illness made in a Bulgarian broadcast led to the belief in some Turkish quarters that the king may have been the victim of an assassination attempt.

Istanbul heard wholly-unverified reports that the king suffered a heart attack after an unpleasant two-day conference at the headquarters of Adolf Hitler during which the Nazi leader became enraged and attempted to strike the monarch. Hitler was said to have demanded Bulgarian support in the war against Russia.

LOSE RATIONS

One Family Deprived of Book Until Dec. 31, 1944.

DETROIT (AP) - The office of price administration yesterday imposed penalties against nine persons it accused of violating price regulations, in one instance revoking a family's war ration book until Dec. 31, 1944.

Frederic S. Glover, jr., of Cleveland, OPA regional hearing commissioner, assessed the most severe penalty against Mrs. A. D. Wilkinson of suburban Grosse Pointe, one of a group of socially prominent persons accused of making illegal purchases.

Mrs. Wilkinson received the "extreme penalty," Glover said, because of evidence the family had a food supply "of several years" on hand. Testimony indicated she had an inventory of 1,276 cans of rationed foods with a point value of 7,273 and deep-freeze foods valued at 1,078 points.

Mountbatten, Knox Study Southeast Asia Map

Map of southeast Asia is the center of interest for Secretary of Navy Frank Knox, left above and Vice Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten as they discuss in Knox' Washington office the plans for the offensive that Mountbatten will direct against the Japanese in that area. Before he reaches his new post, the new Allied supreme commander in southeast Asia is expected to visit London and Chungking.

Mountbatten Leaves Capital, Strategy Set

Curtain Falls on Prologue to Battle Of Pacific; FDR, Churchill to Discuss Europe Next.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Lord Louis Mountbatten's departure from the capital indicated today that the curtain has rung down on the Pacific phase of the current Allied strategy talks with the stage set for a discussion of Europe and its problems when Prime Minister Winston Churchill arrives here next week to resume his conferences with President Roosevelt.

Mountbatten, the new Allied commander in southeastern Asia left last night for an undisclosed destination after completing two days of discussions with U. S. military and naval leaders on plans to oust the Japanese from Burma. He is expected to turn up next in London—and later Chungking—for further discussions in drafting final plans for the campaign outlined in general terms at the Quebec meeting between Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt.

Churchill's coming visit was announced at the Citadel at Quebec late yesterday. The exact date of his arrival has not been revealed, but Quebec reports said his radio address next Tuesday will be made from here. He originally was scheduled to speak on Sunday from the Citadel but the address was postponed.

Observers believed the renewed Churchill-Roosevelt talks would touch on a wide range of subjects, including a new and bigger Allied push in Europe, political treatment of occupied countries and possibly relations with the Soviet Union.

The two leaders, in their joint news conference winding up the Quebec meeting said approval had been given to concerted "forward action" by the armies, navies and air forces of Britain and the United States in both the Atlantic and Mediterranean. Mr. Roosevelt offered his own suggestion that an-

Russians Describe Mark V, Mystery German Tank.

MOSCOW — (AP) — The Mark V, missing link in a series of latest-model German tanks, has turned out to be a 45-ton monster carrying a 75 millimeter gun and is called the Panther.

Red Star, Soviet army newspaper, published a description of the machine which has been something of a mystery to Allied military observers since the earlier Mark IV was succeeded by the Mark VI.

CITY WINS 'V'

Receives Pennant as Reward For Defense Activity.

Mansfield had won a "V" award today for its participation in the home front war program, but civilian defense officials were undecided about where to put the pennant.

The red, white, and blue flag with a big "V" in the center was awarded to the city by state civilian defense headquarters after more than 60 per cent of its homes won individual "V" stickers.

Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff suggested that the pennant, which measures five feet by three feet, be flown from the Central park flag pole.

More than 6,000 of the city's 9,100 homes earned "V" stickers by cooperating fully with the war services program of civilian defense, said Mrs. John Pierce, war services chief.

DRIVERS JAM RATION OFFICE

Start Rush to Exchange B, C Coupons For New Ones; Deadline Nears.

Waiting lines formed today at the ration board office as the deadline for exchanging old-type B and C gasoline ration coupons approached and while scores of motorists renewed their supplemental gasoline rations.

The old-type coupons will not be acceptable for gasoline after Aug. 31. Colors of the new books are the same as previously, but the new type carries the words "milage ration" plus a large B or C, while the old-style is identified with the words, "permits delivery of one unit of gasoline."

Rationing boards in this district have been issuing new-type coupons for about four weeks, and many motorists have them, but the majority has waited until the last few days, ration officials said.

The board is also currently faced with a great number of renewals of supplemental rations. Volunteers have been helping with the renewals and exchanges during the past week.

In renewing the supplemental gasoline applications, the ration

Orders Check of Report Boy, 16, Was Driving Taxi

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said today he would ask Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals to investigate a report that a taxi driven by a 16-year-old youth struck a girl at Fourth and Main streets.

The girl, Betty Lyons, 17, of 145 East Second street, suffered minor injuries, but the mishap brought out the information that taxi firms may be using drivers who are under 17, the minimum age for operators in the city, Bates said.

Officers who investigated the accident listed the age of the taxi driver as 16 on their report with the traffic bureau. The driver is employed by the DeLuxe Cab company.

Miss Lyons, who was struck Thursday as she crossed the intersection of Fourth and Main streets, received hip and back injuries and was treated by a physician.

MAIN RESISTANCE ENDS

Richland Countians Believed To Have Taken Part In Final Drive.

(By International News Service)

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA —American jungle fighters on the strategic island of New Georgia, keystone of the central Solomons, have overcome all "organized resistance" at Bairoko harbor and have further extended their gains by occupying several more islands nearby, it was announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The fall of Bairoko harbor places all of New Georgia island in American hands.

The island of New Georgia was wrested by elements of the Twenty-Fifth, Thirty-Seventh and Forty-Third divisions with assistance of the United States navy and the marines.

(Editor's Note: Since the Thirty-Seventh division is composed almost entirely of Ohio men, many of them members of the National guard before it was federalized, it is likely that a number of Richland countians took part in the successful campaign to drive the Japs out of New Georgia island.)

Simultaneously with the announcement that Japanese organized resistance has ended, General MacArthur's communique revealed that several small islands west of Baanga have been occupied by the Yanks. No indication of the number of isles taken was given, nor did the report indicate whether any resistance was encountered by the troops of his command who landed.

After almost two months of bitter fighting American troops completed occupation of the island when they went into the last Jap stronghold at Bairoko Thursday to find it deserted.

The enemy apparently made a

GETS ORDERS

Butcher Told to Clean Up Premises or Face Arrest.

Following up his promise to do something about reported unsanitary conditions at slaughter houses in the Mansfield area, Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, today ordered a butcher near the city to clean up his premises after a neighbor complained that there was an unpleasant odor coming from the slaughter house.

Dr. Wild said investigation by the health department revealed that sewage was spread over the ground near the slaughter house and waste from livestock slaughtered had accumulated in a shed only 50 feet from the building where animals are butchered.

"We will give the owner reasonable time to correct conditions that are a threat to health and then order the work done," Dr. Wild said.

If the order is ignored the violator faces a $100 fine and a maximum jail sentence of 90 days under the county health regulations.

Blow at Nazidom Shrine Follows U. S. Fortress Raid on Mystery Target Nearing Completion In French Forest; Foe Caught Off Guard.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—The Exchange Telegraph agency reported from Istanbul today that the German ambassador to Turkey, Baron Franz von Papen, has been advised that Adolf Hitler will "abdicate" in favor of him.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—A two-hour long parade of British four-engined bombers blasted vast areas of the German industrial and railway center of Nuremburg into flaming ruins last night in what may have been the heaviest raid of all time.

Striking only a few hours after American Flying Fortresses smashed a mystery target hidden in a French forest at dusk yesterday, the big night armada dropped perhaps 2,500 tons of bombs on the Nazi shrine city at a cost of only 33 bombers.

"Reports so far received indicate that the attack was well concentrated," the air ministry said. It described the raid as "very heavy."

A German broadcast claimed that 62 planes, mostly four-engined, were shot down. Bombs fell "exclusively" on cultural and historical monuments and damaged the old city wall and churches, it said.

Hundreds of thousands of bombs, ranging from mighty four-ton super block busters to two-pound incendiaries, were scattered over electrical supply and motor factories clustered just south of the medieval walled town and on important railway installations throughout the area.

British Mosquitoes, fast twin-engined light bombers, joined in the crescendoing offensive with raids on the bomb-pocked industrial Ruhr as Berlin got a second night of respite after three successive night raids.

Beaufighters of the fighter command kept the assault on railway targets and air fields in France, Belgium and Holland on a round-the-clock basis with new attacks last night.

The sudden shifting of the weight of the RAF's night offensive from Berlin to southern Germany was believed to have caught the Nazi defenses off guard. Nuremberg lies 240 miles south of Berlin and it would be most difficult for the Germans to shift large forces of night fighters at the last moment.

The four-engined Stirlings, Halifaxes and Lancasters swept more

ON TOP: U. S. Planes Plaster Italy Targets, Bag 20 of Foe

(By International News Service)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—American warplanes maintained their superiority in Italian skies yesterday when they raided a number of important targets while at the same time inflicting another smashing defeat on the enemy air force, an Allied communique announced today.

Twenty Axis fighters were shot down in aerial combats, while nine Allied planes were lost.

Medium Allied bombers selected Naples and vicinity as their target, heaping destruction on the much bombed communications and traffic network while Fortresses reached out 100 miles east of Rome and bombed the Sulmona railway.

Mitchell bombers had a field day as they hammered the Axis air force for a record bag. They shot down 16 enemy planes out of 50 in a dogfight over the Benevento railroad yards near Naples.

Marauders escorted by Lightnings, scored with equal success on the railway yards at Caserta near Naples which [illegible] bombed, and drove off another 50 attacking enemy planes.

Flying Fortresses rocked the Sulmona yards with tremendous explosions, outfought two dozen enemy planes and shot down one, while escorting Lightnings bagged three more.

Light and medium bombers swung across the Italian toe and lambasted Catanzaro, Sibari, Ce-

ROLLING: Russian Offensive In Ukraine Sweeps Past Sevsk

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—The Rome radio, quoting neutral sources, today declared Premier Josef Stalin of Russia will visit the Caucasus in the near future to meet with Anglo-American military and political representatives. The broadcast was reported by Reuters news agency.

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—The mighty summer offensive of the Red army reached a new crescendo today as Soviet forces swept on in the Ukraine following recapture of Sevsk, 80 miles south of Bryansk, and Kotelva, 63 miles west of Kharkov.

Sevsk and Kotelva fell, along with numerous other inhabited localities, in two of the fiercest battles of the summer campaign, when determined Russian tank and infantry forces broke through strong German defenses on two sectors of the Ukraine front.

The Soviet midnight communique revealed that 5,000 Nazis had been slain in the fighting for Sevsk, while 3,000 more were killed in the advance west and southwest of Kharkov.

Meanwhile, Russian airmen carried out heavy raids on enemy airdromes, military trains and concentrations of troops, tanks and motor vehicles without the loss of a single plane, according to a resume of aerial activity.

Sevsk represents the farthest point of the Russian advance in the northern Ukraine. It is only 17 miles from the vitally important Bryansk-Konotop-Kiev railroad. It was also the farthest western point reached by the Soviets in their winter offensive in that area, but the Nazis retook the town early in the spring.

Russian infantrymen seized Sevsk in a frontal and flanking three-pronged assault behind a savage aerial and artillery bombardment. Shock troops cracked through powerful enemy defenses north and south of the city, while

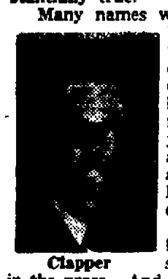
IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—You could almost stand on the proposition that a man who has made a success in his business or profession takes a 50-50 chance of being discredited and publicly humiliated when he accepts a responsible post at Washington.

That is a terrible thing to say. But far worse than the saying of it is the sad fact that it is substantially true.

Many names will come to your mind. When Elmer Davis came to Washington only a year ago he was one of the most respected of all radio commentators. He had worked hard for years to win the confidence of people in his integrity, judgment and ability as an analyst of events. After having achieved notable success by a lifetime of work, Davis was drafted to become chief of OWI.



Clapper

Now, a year later, Davis is bruised, discouraged, held up to savage attack in congress and in the press. And his chief who brought him here, gives him the rough brushoff, and leaves him standing alone and exposed to every political brickbat.

Doesn't Mr. Roosevelt know that he is the real target of these brickbats? Yet men like Davis must stand out in front and take them—and with no protection, no support, no thanks from the chief they serve. You would not find a better man to head OWI, but that would never be suspected from the treatment Davis receives.

Davis means nothing to me. But he ought to mean something to the government.

That is only a handy illustration of the careless and callous waste of good brains and ability by this administration—far less excusable than waste in dollars.

Where is the reputation of William S. Knudsen, who spent a lifetime to achieve supreme success in automobile production? Or of Donald Nelson, a crack business executive? Or dozens of others you could name who have been pulled through the Washington knothole?

To turn to another type, the men who hoped to make careers of public service, men like Leon Henderson and Milo Perkins? Both are men of exceptional ability, exceptionally devoted to public service. Both were kicked out as sacrificial goats by the president for whom they would have laid down their lives. Wallace it getting it, too.

In many countries, and in this country in the past, it has been considered an honor to work in public office. One who worked with reasonable ability and industry could at least feel that he was serving usefully, and that he held a respected place in the community. Now it seems as if all of the dignity has gone out of public service here.

No one familiar with politics expects democracies to be grateful. That is not the trouble here. It is not the public that is doing it. Sincere, hard-working, loyal men here are being knifed by men around them, men above and below them, men down the hall, men they are sitting with in conference every day.

There is the smell of decadence over this place, and a stifling miasma of court intrigue. When a name is mentioned, does the big man in the White House smile or frown? Dozens of able men wake up every morning wondering where they stand. In an administration that has made social security its watchword, there is less individual security among appointed officials than I have seen in a quarter of a century as a newspaper reporter here.

In a uniform you are reasonably safe. You may be shelved, but it will be done quietly and without subjecting you to public humiliation. The real heroes are the ones who come here to work in civilian capacity. If they attract any attention at all, it is likely to be unfavorable attention. The chief recognition they can expect is the leather medal and the boot.

Efficient public servants never were more needed. Government will be more difficult now than ever before. But unless good men have behind them a number of southern Democrats in congress, they might as well keep their trunks packed. An election is coming on and everyone is apt to be judged by the number of votes he swings.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—When a dressed-up, carriage-trade Republican goes to his knees between the car tracks on Main street at high noon and comes up rolling his eyes and his tongue to confess to the neighbors that he has lived in error but now aims to git right with the Lord, why friends, that ain't just only news.

Friends, that there is history and history happened this week when Mr. Clarence Buddington Kelland came out with his personal plan for the brave new world of the future before the National Republican club.

Pegler

Hallelujah!

I had a preview of Mr. Kelland's plan several days before, a long, hard-reading script that led off with a search of his soul and a purge of his innards that purified him of all prejudice, preconception, rancor, meanness and bile. I laid it down at the end of this preamble, however, with the thought that Mr. K. was being comic but wasn't at his best. For I have known Mr. Kelland these many years in his role of jester as president and toastmaster of the Dutch Treat club and could not picture this acid little imp, two pounds lighter than a nickel's worth of nothing and with a Mr. Punch profile, as the author of a world-plan.

Ray Clapper, however, now salutes him and, with an implied amen, says he had always had him rated as an isolationist. That's nothing. I have known him as a humorist. It isn't so hard to take an isolationist seriously but to pay respectful attention to the Mr. K. of the Dutch Treat club you first have to tear him all down, throw him away and build you a new character. So I got out his text again and studied it through, all the while watching for the gags and gimmicks with which he used to lacerate the vanity of the Dutch Treat's guests of honor and concluded that our Mr. K. was not the wit being funny but an American, and a Republican, at that, offering to go walking into the future with Britain, China and even Stalin; but insisting, for the first time in any such discussion, that, instead of renouncing all benefits from the war in the name of pure amateurism, this time we maintain our fighting strength and hold the defensive outposts now in our possession.

All previous proposals that I know of had piously repudiated such designs as unworthy, as though, in growing great, we had never acquired an acre by force or pressure or a subject without the written consent of the same. Mr. Kelland wants us to turn pro and he makes his plan solid and specific by contrast with the shapeless dreams of men without the candor to say what they mean about Bermuda and other European outposts near our shores, nor even to mean it if challenged.

He may not trust Russia but he yields to the practical fact that Russia will have to be dealt in on the receivership of the smashed-up nations and treated as an associate or, in time, met as an enemy. He bows to a conviction that the United States, as one of the four great victorious powers of the world, can remain great and hope to avoid further world wars only by loyal collaboration with the other three.

Now this Mr. K. has been suspected of having somber moods several times in the past. Usually at the annual Dutch Treat show, somewhere after the intermission, some historic patriot, such as Nathan Hale or Paul Revere, would appear in a green spotlight and declaim a Fourth of July oration by Mr. K. But by that time the guests and members would be strayed all over the Waldorf and we gave Bud the benefit of the doubt.

Then, a few years back, he threw in with the regular Republicans in earnest. Still we figured that our Bud was just studying amusing types and would come up with material for a novel.

I am now forced to believe, however, that he has had a streak of senator in him all the time, for our little chairman has given the Republicans a much more talkable and salable program than the Atlantic Charter. It is something that people can understand, debate and accept or reject, and it doesn't promise food off our tables and shoes off our feet forever to peoples the world over who outnumber us ten to one.

My sense of humor may be numb, but if Mr. K. is jesting now the gag eludes me.

Robinson have converted nine-tenths of their earnings into war bonds, taxes and war charities? . . . GOV. BRICKER OFFERS 5-POINT PLAN FOR FARMS

Raps Confusion, Regimentation Call For Overhauling Of Agriculture Program.

(By International News Service)

RAPID CITY, S. D.—John W. Bricker, governor of Ohio and a likely candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1944, advanced today a five-point program to overhaul what he termed is the nation's chaotic agricultural situation.

A combination of government failings he charged, has brought "the fear of hunger even to the people within this land of plenty."

The solution, Bricker told a Rapid City dinner audience last night, would be:

1. "A complete change of procedure on the part of the centralized bureaucratic administration in Washington responsible for the confusion of impractical directives hanging as a millstone around the necks of the producers and distributors of food."

2. The removal of "government restrictions that interfere with the law of supply and demand until they discourage all-out production."

3. The formulation of necessary federal directives "by individuals familiar with agriculture" and their administration locally.

4. Removal of price ceilings on all perishable food products and procedure to "encourage an even, adequate price for farm products."

5. Making available an adequate supply of farm labor and machinery.

"In such a program," the Ohio governor said, "the farmers of our nation will work uncomplainingly long hours in an effort to do their patriotic duty. But they rightfully revolt at being driven by organized government in ruthles programs of regimentation."

Bricker declared that the government fails to regard agriculture as an essential industry, especially where draft deferments and machinery is concerned.

"In Manpower Commissioner McNutt's recent pre-Pearl Harbor fathers order, he listed 149 virtually draft-proof, critical occupations," Bricker continued. "Farm labor or farm management were not on the list. Those engaged in gardening were classed as nondeferable and ordered to change to some other essential, critical occupation."

Bricker is a guest of former Governor Nels Smith of Wyoming at a ranch in the Black Hills. He shared the platform last night with Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska, former Governors Smith of Wyoming and Ralph Carr of Colorado, and Republican national committeemen from Oklahoma, Montana, Wyoming and South Dakota.

DELAY TRIAL OF CAFE OPERATOR

Court Sustains Objection to Procedure of Drawing Jury In Juvenile Case.

Trial of Jack Theohor, cafe operator, charged with selling beer to minors, met with a new delay today when his attorney filed an objection to the legality of the jury panel drawn up for the trial.

James V. Will, defense attorney, charged the jury had been illegally drawn without the knowledge of the jury commission. Judge Stuart H. Cramer sustained the objection and instructed the jury commission to draw a new panel of 24 persons.

This is the third postponement of the case since Theohor's arrest July 14. The hearing was originally scheduled for August 11, continued until the 18th, jury trial was set for August 31 and continued yesterday until September 8.

Following the trial of Theohor, Lawrence and Marie Lyons will come before juvenile court on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. They were released yesterday on bond to the juvenile court from the county jail where they have been since their arrest early in August.

Meanwhile today in juvenile court hearing was held for two boys, 14 and 15 years of age, charged with contributing to the delinquency of a 14-year old boy.

Judge Cramer ordered one boy sent back to his home in Columbus where he will be turned over to juvenile authorities and the other detained until arrangements could be made to send him to the Bureau of Juvenile Research in Columbus.

That big tomato in The News-Journal window may not be the biggest in Mansfield, but Prof. E. T. S. Cliffe, who grew it, thinks it's a pretty good one, and it's worthy of display. There may be bigger vegetables or fruits than the ones shown in the window at various times during the growing season. It's not The News-Journal's desire, however, to engage in a dispute about the size and merits of garden products. Sometimes a gardener will come in to report derisively that he's got "one at home that's a lot bigger." He may be right, but The News-Journal doesn't want to be the judge.

Confusion reigned this morning in the county treasurer's office as the entire force went on a bat hunt. During the night a bat had somehow found its way into the office and when the door was opened the chase began. One bat proved the equal, or almost, to two men. First Tony Moritz, janitor, joined in the group with one of the BB guns confiscated some time ago by juvenile officers. Shooting the bat he wounded it and brought it down into range of a broom wielded by one of the office workers. Between them, they ended the life of the intruder.

A reminder of earlier days comes temporarily to Mansfielders who pass the Richland Mutual Insurance company's building at 25 East Third street. Basement of the building is occupied by Daniel Simon, travel agent, and when his sign above the entrance was removed a few days ago for repainting, the sign "Doctor Ecki," in metal-embossed letters, was disclosed. The location will be remembered by many older Mansfielders as the long-time office of the late Dr. Ecki, prominent among the city's physicians 40 years ago and said to have been the owner of the first automobile in Mansfield.

COSTS HIM MORE

Mansfielder Pays $15 For Eight Traffic Tickets.

Collecting eight traffic tickets in the last 10 months for overtime parking in the downtown area today cost John McNeal, 101 West Park boulevard, $15 in municipal court.

The eighth unpaid ticket was the "last straw" for Patrolman Earl Korn who cited McNeal on a charge of illegal parking. McNeal posted $15 bond and then forfeited it by failing to appear for hearing today.

His forfeiture was the equivalent of a $7 fine for McNeal, since his parking tickets would have cost him only $1 each if he had paid them before he was cited by police.

Under the traffic regulations, patrolmen may bring drivers into court if they fail to pay for parking violations and continue to ignore warnings mailed by the traffic bureau.
